EX-CHIEF OF POLICE LENGEL IN JAIL

CHARGED WITH THE MURDER OF CANTON NEWSPAPER EDITOR

Don Mellett; July 16, 1926—Lengel is the Fifth Person Accused For the Murder. He is Accused of Having Laid the Plot—Indictment Is Returned On Basis of Story Told By Detective Streitenberger, Now Serving Life In the Pen.

Seranus A. Lengel, 65 years old, deposed Canton police chief, is in Stark county jail at Canton, facing a charge of first degree murder in conjunction with the slaying of Don R. Mellett, Canton publisher, following return of an indictment against him by a special grand jury Wednesday.

Lengel, indicted as a result of a confession by Floyd E. Streitenberger, former detective and close police department associate of Lengel, is charged with having been one of the chief instigators of the plot against Mellett.

In his confession Streitenberger charged that he had acted as a go-between for Lengel and Louis Mazer, also charged with first degree murder, when the plot against the young editor was hatched and carried out.

Lengel, according to Streitenberger's story, was eager to "get even" with Mellett for editorial attacks made against him and efforts to have him ousted as police chief when he had only one more year to serve before he was eligible for pension.

Streitenberger added that Lengel feared other knowledge Mellett had gained a short time before he was slain might cost him his job and lead to prosecution on charges of malfeasance of office if Mellett proved allegations of protection by Lengel and other police department officials of certain vice interests.

Streitenberger also declared Lengel was a member of the group which framed the famous "sick dog" alibi for Streitenberger and Mazer following the murder. The "alibi" sought to place Mazer at Streitenberger's home caring for the former detective's "sick" dog at the time of the crime was committed.

Lengel's dismissal from office was upheld by a civil service commission last August after a second hearing on charges of incompetency and inefficiency. He also was charged specifically with having "bungled" the Mellett murder inquiry.

The former chief first was dismissed from office in the spring of 1926, but was reinstated by a civil service commission composed of Price Janson, John W. Burris and James A. Allardice. Charges of inefficiency and neglect of duty were brought against Janson and Burris, whose votes reinstated Lengel, and they were discharged from the commission a week before the editor was shot down last July 16.

A new commission, with Allardice as its chairman, then upheld Lengel's second dismissal.

The grand jury, called specially May 23, worked on the indictment for four days. Streitenberger appeared before the panel May 23, immediately following his conviction and sentence to life imprisonment, when he signed his confession, implicating Lengel.

The former sleuth, however, broke down and was on the verge of a collapse when he told his story the first time. He was taken to the penitentiary while the grand jury session was recessed until last Monday. Streitenberger repeated his story along with the testimony of other witnesses.

Included among them were Mrs. Streitenberger, Mazer, former County School Superintendent A. J. Smith former Patrolman Homer Moore and William Brumme, Massillon salesman, who testified during the Rudner trial that he was introduced to Lengel in Rudner's hardware store at Massillon several days before Mellett was assassinated. Mazer was called by the grand jury's request.

Patrick Eugene McDermott, Nanty Glo, Pennsylvania, "hard guy" one of the gunmen, who shot Mellett; Ben Rudner, Massillon hardware merchant and son of a millionaire Canton junk dealer, who was the "pay-off man," and Floyd E. Streitenberger, ousted city detective and henchman, of Lengel, are serving life sentences in Ohio penitentiary, Streitenberger and McDermott without hope of pardon.

Louis Mazer, Canton jungle prince is in Stark county jail awaiting the outcome of the case against Lengel. Mazer has been promised immunity if it is found he told "the truth" in his confession which led to Streitenberger's conviction.

TWIN BANDITS CAPTURED AT STEUBENVILLE

Accused are Wanted in Oregon For Killing Three Men in a Train Holdup.

Ray and Roy D'Antremont, twin brothers, on whose heads nearly $20,000 in rewards have been posted by Uncle Sam, were caught Wednesday in Steubenville. They are wanted in Oregon for the killing of a postal clerk and three trainmen in a passenger train holdup at Siskiyou, Oregon, about four years ago. Assistant U. S. District Attorney W. B. Bartels said the two captured have been identified as the bandits.

Mr. Bartels received word about a month ago that the two brothers were believed to be hiding at Steubenville. The agent of the bureau of investigation who made the arrest Wednesday works out of the Columbus office. Bartels said, but he declined to make public his name.

Hugh D'Autremont, a third brother was captured recently in the Philippine Islands.

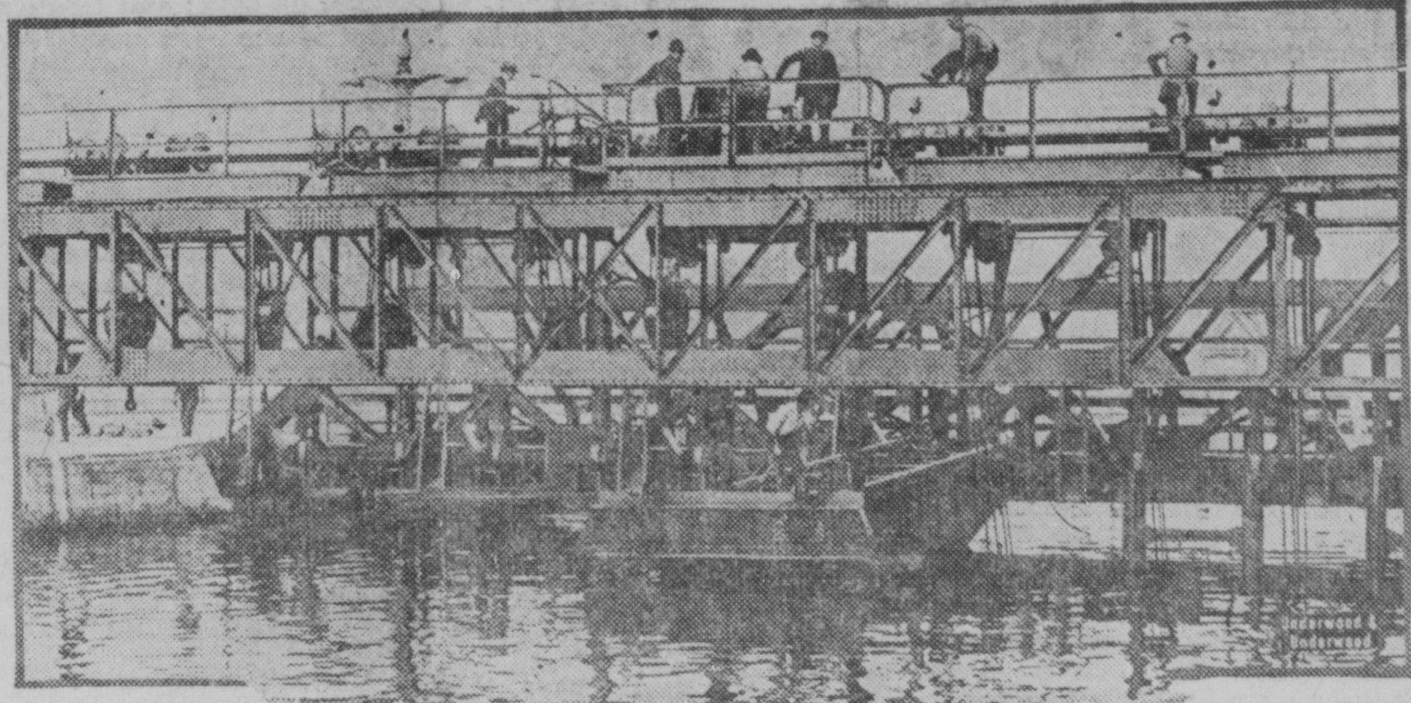

The youths said they had been working in the Wheeling Steel Corporation mill in Steubenville since January.

Capture of Roy took place when he went to work. Then the officers returned to a rooming house in the foreign section where the brothers had been living. One of the detectives knocked at the door and when Ray appeared told him his brother had been injured at the mill.

Ray rushed out to an automobile which he had been told was waiting to take him to the hospital and was covered by guns of the waiting officers. Two guns were found in the house belonging to the brothers.

The D'Autremonts will be held at Steubenville until Friday when they will be arraigned or removed to Columbus.

Emergency Dam for Ship Locks at Seattle

Should an enemy or a flood destroy the gates of the Lake Washington ship canal, the second largest in the world, located at Seattle, this emergency dam, built recently by the government at a cost of a quarter of a million dollars, could be swung in place and effect a temporary repair in less than five hours.

MADE SHORTER MONEY WILL LAST LONGER

New Bills Will be Harder to Counterfeit--One Year is Required For Making.

Paper money is to be made shorter but will be expected to last longer. This information is contained in a statement given out in Columbus by the Ohio Industrial Lenders' association, an organization of small loan companies, and is based on information from the treasury department at Washington.

The change will affect all United States currency except national bank notes, and is to be made in the interest of convenience and economy.

It is proposed to reduce the size of the bills from 7 7-16 by 3 1-8 inches to 6 1-8 by 2 5-8 inches and it is expected that the change will result in a saving of one-third in the cost of producing the bills. The smaller size will require the folding of the bills but once when placing them in a pocketbook, and this, it is believed will tend to promote the life of the money, as the fewer the creases the less wear on the fibre of the currency. The new bills also will tend to make counterfeiting more difficult officials believe. The new size is the same as that now used in Philippine currency.

It will take a year to manufacture and age the paper required for the new bills and in that time the new plates will be ready. It is proposed to issue bills in the larger denominations first.

JUDGE SOWERS PASSED AWAY IN PORTSMOUTH

End Came After Three Days' Illness--Was Guest of His Friend Harry Taylor.

Judge Daniel H. Sowers one of the most popular and highly respected citizens of Columbus, died in Schirman hospital, Portsmouth, Wednesday afternoon, June 8.

While visiting with Mrs. Sowers at the home of Harry E. Taylor Judge Sowers was stricken with bronchial pneumonia on Sunday and passed away three days later.

Judge Sowers was born in Champaign county sixty years ago and he graduated from Ohio Wesleyan university in 1889. In 1891, he was admitted to the practice of law and became a member of the firm of Hugins & Sowers.

He was serving his second term as common pleas judge of Franklin county and was president of the Ohio Association of Common Pleas Judges. Judge Sowers was active in church work and also took a keen interest in Masonic work and had been elected to receive the Thirty-third degree in Boston next September.

Besides his wife, he is survived by one son, one brother and one sister. The funeral services will be held from St. Paul's Episcopal church Friday afternoon at two o'clock.

PLAN TO HARNESS BAY OF FUNDY TIDE

Promoters Hope to Develop 100,000 Horse Power.

Toronto, Ont.—The tides of the Bay of Fundy, famous in song and story and known to every schoolboy student of geography, are about to be harnessed by industry, according to New Brunswick promoters' plans, which ought to be awarded a prize for novelty and which in principle are as simple as they are novel.

The New Brunswick scheme must not be confused with the Maine project submitted to the people a year or two ago, under which Passamaquoddy bay, marking the eastern terminus of the boundary between Canada and the United States, was to be turned into a huge mill pond. Passamaquoddy forms a large arm at the opening of the Bay of Fundy. The New Brunswick scheme is to be tried 125 miles northeast of the very tip of the neck of the bottle.

Nowhere else in the world is there the curious tidal phenomenon that recurs twice every 24 hours in the Bay of Fundy. The tide, which ebbs and flows gently on open coasts, here finds itself subject to unusual restrictions. Not only is there an unusually long, gradually narrowing inlet, but the bottom of the sea shelves gently upward, so that the inflowing tide has pressure put upon it from both sides and from the bottom. It therefore rises to unusual height.

River Gets Heavy Tide.
At the tip of the Bay of Fundy begins the channel of the Petitcodiac river. And into this little channel surges twice a day the mighty volume of Fundy's tides.

As a river the Petitcodiac does not amount to much, but as a tidal basin it is unique. When the flowing tide reaches Moncton, 25 miles up the river from its mouth, it has so piled upon itself that it comes in a wall of water. This wall, called a "bore," making a noise like the rumble of a train, can be heard miles away. In the spring ice cakes as big as box cars float seaward with the ebbing tide and are tumbled back with the flow faster than a man can walk.

Engineers claim this great volume of energy now going to waste can be turned into electric power. Their plan is to build a rock-filled dam nearly a mile long across the mouth of the Petitcodiac. Twice a day when the tide is running in three locks in the dam will be opened. This will fill to the brim 41 miles of tidal basin. Then the locks will close.

By lowering the imprisoned water two to five feet twice daily, it is estimated 100,000 horse power can be generated at a price lower than at Niagara.

As part of the scheme a spill basin will be provided for by the smaller tidal basin of the Memramcook river. The rock from which material for the dam will be taken is the same rock from which Fifth avenue's famous "brown-stone fronts" were built. Critics of the scheme fear that the silt and mud of the rivers may bring disaster to the plans. When an open basin scoured twice a day by the tides is turned into a setting basin, trouble, they say, will result.

But the promoters, who include Dexter Cooper, an engineer who has long been studying the problem of Fundy's tides; C. F. Ericson, and H. M. Blair of New York, and a number of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia financiers, are sanguine. Prospect of a local power development has produced great interest in the languishing maritime provinces.

MERGER DREAM

Van Swearingen Tells I. C. C. of His Plans.

Washington, June 7.—(UP.)—O. P. Van Swearingen, finance genius, and one of the moving spirits in the proposed C. & O. Pere Marquette-Erie merger, is ready to take $10,000,000 under the market price of his Erie and Pere Marquette holdings to help make his merger dream come true.

He told the Interstate Commerce Commission today the price set by the C. & O. special committee on his stock was that much below the market value, and he was ready even to sell his option holdings at cost if this were deemed essential.

In appealing to the commission as chairman of the C. & O. to speed action on the merger application, the comparatively youthful money wizard said the C. & O.'s interest was for him the dominant interest, with his "personal interest wholly subordinate."

FEMININE FEET GROWING LARGER

Lima, June 7.—Along with a natural complexion and long hair, bid farewell to another attribute of the maiden of yesterday—her tiny feet.

A local shoe salesman, after a long and purely analytic observation, says that the average feminine pedal extremities have increased a half-inch in length and a full size in width during the last 10 years.

"In 1917 the average young woman wore a size 4D shoe. Today she takes a 5A," is the way this scientist sums up his analysis.

Dancing, athletics and walking on hard pavements are responsible, he says; and further opines that if the tendency continues, the flapper of today will have a daughter whose "dogs" will rival those of the corner policeman.

MET TO CONSIDER "SAFETY OF LAND"

There were three congresses held in America before the first Continental congress of 1774. The first of these met at New York on May 1, 1690, in response to a call issued by the General Court of Massachusetts—"the first call for a general congress in America." The purpose was to confer on "suitable methods for assisting each other for the safety of the whole land." Seven colonies were invited, of which four attended the congress. The congress of 1754 met at Albany on June 19, for the purpose of negotiating a treaty with the Indians, and also to form a plan of union among the colonies. The "Albany plan," sometimes called "Franklin's plan," was submitted to the assemblies of the several colonies through their governors, and to the king through the agency of the lords of trade, but failed of adoption both in the colonies and in England. The congress of 1765, better known as the "Stamp Act Congress," was held in New York city, opening on October 7, 1765.

Improved Uniform International Sunday School Lesson

(By REV. P. B. FITZWATER, D.D., Dean, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)
(© 1927, Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for June 12
PETER DELIVERED FROM PRISON

LESSON TEXT—Acts 12:1-17.
GOLDEN TEXT—Many are the afflictions of the righteous: but the Lord delivereth him out of them all.—Ps. 34:19.
PRIMARY TOPIC—God Takes Care of Peter.
JUNIOR TOPIC—God Answers Prayer for Peter.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How Does God Deliver Us?
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Power of United Prayer.

I. Peter's Imprisonment (vv. 1-4).
1. By whom (v. 1).
Herod, the grandson of the wicked Herod who slew the innocent children of Bethlehem.
2. The reason (v. 3).
It was to gain the favor of the Jews. Herod was not a Jew, but an Edomite, therefore knew that his success was dependent upon his having the good will of the Jews. Herod for the sake of popularity manifested a deep sympathy for degenerate Judaism. It was but the sympathy of the politician. Since the church had developed so as to be a successful rival of Judaism, indeed was already displacing it, he saw an opportunity to curry favor with the Jews by putting forth his hands against it.
3. The method (v. 4).
He was arrested, put into prison and guarded by four quaternions of soldiers. A quaternion is a guard of four soldiers. Humanly speaking, it was impossible to escape. They had doubtless heard of Peter's escape from jail before, so they thought they would take no risks this time. However, they made one fatal mistake—they left out God.
4. The Church of God in Prayer (v. 5).
The church was at a crisis. Her situation was most grave. James, one of the brethren of the church, was dead, and Peter, the most prominent of all, was in prison. In this desperate strait they did the wise thing—they betook themselves to prayer. It was a noteworthy prayer.
1. It was unto God, not unto men, or to be heard of men. This is a very common fault today. All true prayer is unto God.
2. It was united prayer.
There is peculiar power in the united prayer of God's people.
3. It was an intensely earnest prayer.
It was more than unceasing prayer, it was the earnest desire of the soul as it stretched itself out toward God.
4. It was definite prayer.
They specifically offered prayer to God for Peter. Their prayer was concentrated, definite and specific.

III. Peter Delivered by an Angel (vv. 6-11).
1. Peter sleeping (v. 6).
This shows that he was not greatly disturbed over the matter. The Lord keeps in perfect peace those whose minds are stayed on Him. (Isa. 26:3).
2. Peter leaves the prison (vv. 7-10).
A heavenly light shone in the prison. The angel smote Peter on the side; the chains fell off. Peter put on his clothes and passed by one guard after another through the iron gate out into the city.
3. The effect upon Peter (v. 11).
Although the matter was so wonderful to Peter, even outside his consciousness, when he came to himself he was assured beyond peradventure that God had miraculously delivered him from Herod's wicked hands.

IV. Unconscious Unbelief (vv. 12-19).
1. Behavior of Peter and the church (vv. 12-17).
Peter went to the house of Mary and knocked. The knock was answered by Rhoda who was so overjoyed that she forgot to open the gate, and ran in and told them that Peter was at the gate. The disciples were not prepared for such good news, and even accused her of madness. She, undaunted, insisted. They offered as an explanation that perhaps it might be Peter's guardian angel in his likeness. They got more than they expected. Peter rehearsed unto them the Lord's dealing with him, and instructed them to make these things known unto James and the brethren.
2. The behavior of the soldiers (vv. 18, 19).
There was great agitation among them as to what had become of Peter. This was a serious matter since they were responsible for him. Not being able to account for Peter's escape, Herod commanded that they be put to death. After this Herod went down to Caesarea. Here he was adored as God. Because he arrogated this honor to himself, the Lord smote him. Herod died, but the Word of the Lord grew and multiplied.

TRY SOMETHING NEW IS SUGGESTION

"What shall we have new in our dinner and luncheon menus?" is one of the questions that are often asked and now that the spring days are here, even with the suggestions one receives from the market, do not seem to completely satisfy the home manager—the housewife who does the marketing and planning of menus for her family.
Hot dishes all have their appeal at breakfast, luncheon and dinner.
Hot waffles or cakes for breakfast—a crisp, tasty salad, and a hot creamed dish with hot biscuits for lunch or dinner cannot help but tempt the most critical eater.
Possibly if the housewife who becomes discouraged will check up on what she has served recently, she will find she has gotten into a rut, and repeating week after week the same old standby dishes. We all do it. Every home admits of the same.
Why not try something new? It will not only prove interesting to you in preparing but to the rest of the family who will sample these surprise dishes.
Don't you ever bring home a new recipe from the club luncheon, or borrow one from your best friend? And isn't the effort in preparing it always appreciated?
The markets are loaded down with seasonable, fresh vegetables and fruits, which are selling at a very nominal price, and this is really the season to be eating them—when our systems are demanding them rather than when they are out of season.
At this time of the year we need to think of the mineral salts from the vegetables and the cooling fruits and juices to thin out and tone up the blood.
And, don't forget the greens, both the cooked and the fresh ones—in the form of salads, provide the necessary mineral salts required in the various body processes.
It's a queer thing, but beginning with this season many people begin to lose flesh because of unwise eating. Some of us who wish it would affect us can never lose a pound, while those already fleshy continue to gain, no matter, it seems, what the diet.

SUCH A BORE

"On being offered $70,000,000 for one of his properties," we read, "Mr. Mellon replied, 'It's a good price, but I don't care to be bothered reinvesting $70,000,000.'"
That has frequently been the objection in our own case. "No," we say quietly but firmly, "your proposition is interesting, but really we prefer not to have the bother of rehandling and reinvesting $50,000,000 or $60,000,000; it cuts into our golf so."—New Haven Register.

pile of stone, looms to a height of nearly 300 feet above the plain in the outskirts of Leipzig, where Napoleon was defeated and the fate of his empire sealed. It was erected in 1913 to commemorate the hundredth anniversary of the battle, which freed Germany from Napoleon's grip, and is called the "Voelkerschlachtdenkmal."The miniature reproduction is about seventeen and one-half inches high.

IN TOWN OF 3,500*Everybody in Paola, Kan., Interested in Oil.Paola, Kan.—On top of one of the shallowest oil fields in the world, the town of Paola is filled with people who either own an oil or gas well or an interest in one. Paola has a population of 3,500 and there are more than 1,200 producing oil wells within the confines of Miami county, of which Paola is the county seat.The oil underlies the surface in shallow streams and pools. Some of the pools supply oil for 20 years or so and then die down. A pool struck recently in the northwestern part of the county has renewed interest and activity.Well Costs $1,000.Oil is found in the field at a depth of about 450 feet. A well costs a little less than $1,000 and if it is a good one the owner stands a chance of being comfortably wealthy. Consequently nearly every adult in town is "taking a chance."Maps of the field are displayed in hotels, grocery stores, drug stores and dry goods stores and every operator carries his own specially marked map, by which he will show that the development is directly in line with his lease.Excitement is at a high pitch. Since 1875 these furies have been coming and going in the town, but none seems to have lost enthusiasm. Employees of the post office formed the Post Office Oil company and drilled a well, the men at the drug store drilled another and the men at the Kandy Kitchen still another. Some hit and some got dry holes.The town is full of typical stories.
Enthusiasts cite the farmer who lived frugally on a small tract for years, barely existing. Then the oil came in and from six small wells he now gets about $1,000 a month. Others cite the case of Herman Miller, a junk dealer, who refused $1,000 for a one-eighth share in a well one day, only to find it was a dry hole the next.The Miami county pool has been giving up oil for more than 40 years.
A. W. Christie put down the wildcat that opened up the latest pool.
He sunk the first well on a location arrived at by the motions of a curved stick. Some believe explicitly in the powers of the stick and others openly deride it in favor of geology.Good Well in Back Yard.One of the best known wells is that of W. H. Morehouse, in a back yard in Paola. It came in 12 years ago, flowing 150 barrels a day. It is 450 feet deep and cost about $750 to drill. It still is flowing three barrels a day. When oil was selling at $3.50 a barrel the well was averaging about 15 barrels a day. Several of these back yard oil wells have been in existence from 5 to 12 years.Back-yard gas wells also are common. Farmers light and heat their homes, barns and yards with the gas.
David McCullough even lighted up the highway in front of his farm with gas from his well. On another farm a croquet ground was brightly lighted.Two deep wells are being sunk in the field and although the shallow pool men scoff at the possibility of their bringing in oil, they have ardent backers.Alaska Salmon Yield Brings $610,750,038Washington.—From the island-dotted waterways of Alaska's thousands of miles of coast has come a wealth more precious, more vital than gold.
It is the wealth of the sea itself—of the teeming millions of salmon that have been taken from the bosom of the North Pacific and placed on the world's table.Since Alaska was purchased from Russia, 60 years ago, salmon has led the list of exports from the territory, with $610,750,038 to its credit—a figure which multiplies nearly eighty-five fold the price Uncle Sam paid for the territory.Despite the mineral wealth of the territory, the salmon exports lead those of gold by $250,000,000.Thousands of men, many of them native Alaskan Indians, are engaged in salmon fishing or canning and subsidiary industries. The number during 1925 was estimated at more than 25,000. The investment at that time was set at $55,400,000.Bureau of Fisheries' Navy Gets Ready for ActionKetchikan, Alaska.—Fish pirates and salmon poachers along the Alaskan coast, the region whence comes many millions of dollars worth of canned fish each year, will confront a serious handicap when the bureau of fisheries' navy, a fleet of 55 armed vessels, gets on the patrol line.Pirating is trap and scow robbery.
While poaching is fishing in prohibited areas. Both are subsidizing, according to fisheries officials. To keep the long indented coastline under the watchful eye of the bureau 55 armed boats with 38 small tugs are commissioned to act as guards and peace officers.Headquarters will be maintained at Kodiak, Cook Inlet, Chignik, Afognak and Ketchikan.Scotti Becomes CitizenNew York.—Having sung for the CONVENTION

M. E. CHURCH*Sunday School Workers Meet in This City, Sessions Were Well Attended.The sixtieth annual convention of the Pickaway County Council of Religious Education, convened at the Methodist Episcopal church Thursday morning. E. S. Neuding, president of the association, presided and devotional services was conducted by Rev. L. W. Green.Following the address of the president, a report was made by George
P. Hunsicker, secretary who recommended that two days be emphasized by the churches and schools of the county, "Go-to-Church" and "Sunday School Day." The first named falls on the first Sunday in May and the second Rally Day about October first.
On these two days an extra effort should be made to build up the attendance of schools and church services.The secretary also recommended that at least one half of the conventions be held in the fall months usually in September and October.A plan should be devised for a social meeting of pastors and superintendents of Circleville and the county, the meeting to open with a luncheon followed by a short address, then a discussion of live topics. Such a meeting should be held from two to three times a year.The report of the treasurer, George F. Grand-Girard, shows that there was a balance on hand June 10, 1926, of $271.06, receipts from June 10, 1926, to June 9, 1927, $349.98 a total of $621.04 and expenditures from June 10, 1926 to June 9, 1927, $355.-
08, leaving a balance of $265.96.The attendance at the morning session was very good. Messages from state speakers were given by Miss Helen Schoedinger on Children's Work; Miss Harriet Harmon on Young People's Work, and W. A.
Holmes on Adult Bible Class Work, and Pastors, Superintendents and General Officers by Arthur T. Arnold.The officers of the county association are: President, E. S. Neuding,

LOVE EXILED QUEEN*Banished 16 Years Ago, She Enjoys Lasting Honor.Lisbon, Portugal.—Queen Amelie of Portugal, who was exiled from this country 16 years ago with the rest of the royal family, left her name associated with so many charitable institutions that she still is loved and respected in the Portuguese republic.This princess of Orleans is very democratic. She founded many children's hospitals and homes, where she helped doctors to tend the sick.At home she supervised the educations of the princes, Louis Philippe and Manuel.Amelie de Braganza, exiled from her native France, lived in England until her marriage to Carlos, the crown prince of Portugal.Prince Manuel, who became king of Portugal, owes his life to his royal mother's courage. When King Carlos and the crown prince were assassinated as the royal family drove through the streets the assailants shot at the younger prince. The queen, seeing the gun aimed at her son, rose in the carriage, and with a bouquet caused the bullet to swerve, so that it merely grazed his hand.Since the proclamation of the republic in Portugal the exiled queen lived for many years in England with her son. But now that the French republic has annulled the ban against the former royal family of France Amelie of Orleans lives in seclusion in a small house near the palace of Versailles, where her ancestors once reigned."Pickup" for CollectorAfter reposing for many weeks in the window of a shop in Bristol, England, an old blue-and-white ginger jar, which many collectors examined and refused to buy, was finally sold by the dealer, for $3. The purchaser disposed of it to Louis Huth, at the sale of whose collection it brought $20,500.
It is one of the "rarest hawthorne jars in existence."Growing Mining IndustryThe mining industry of Alaska is going ahead rapidly and will increase in leaps and bounds when the facilities for getting the mined material out of the country are increased, as they undoubtedly will be in the near future, which will result in cutting the cost of transportation. Last year the total value of the production was $18,- 220,692, while that of the previous year was $17,457,333."As the Twig Is Bent""The world is work crazy," asserts Roger Payne, "and addiction to work is just as bad as any other vice, such as idleness, drink or gambling." The lack of proper home influences, of course, is to blame for most of this waywardness. Most men usually attribute their downfall to the fact that it a tender and impressionable age they were led into their first work by older companions.Continents Not Far ApartAmerica is separated from Asia by

AMUSEMENTS

California — land of romance, the Mecca for those who would follow the setting sun—is shown in all its glory in "Arizona Bound," the first production presenting Gary Cooper, Paramount's new western star, and scheduled for showing at the Met theater on Thursday.

As the result of a definite policy adopted by officials of Famous Players-Lasky, all the Gary Cooper productions will be photographed in locations which will present the most beautiful backgrounds in the western state, and will bring additional interest to these stirring tales of the great frontier.

The Cooper, product of a Montana ranch, has been on the screen for but little more than a year, he is already recognized as a western type of particular appeal. Tall, rangy and bronzed, it is freely predicted that he will swiftly become established as one of the prime favorites among the cowboy heroes. In his first picture as a star he is revealed as an actor of unusual ability, and as a handsome, hard-riding westerner who is equally at home in a fight or a frolic.

The Cooper production will be featured by the presence of "Flash," a magnificent Arabian stallion which is said to be the most beautiful horse ever shown on the screen.

The strong supporting cast assembled for "Arizona Bound," is headed by Betty Jewel, famous as "the girl with the velvet eyes," and El Brendel, one of the screen's newest and funniest comedians. The picture was directed by John Waters, who has been in charge of the filming of many of Paramount's Zane Grey productions.

Days Becoming Longer

The oft-expressed wish of the busy man that the day were longer is being gratified, for the earth is steadily reducing its rate of rotation. It will be some time, however, before we need change our habits on this account, because the lengthening of the day is estimated to amount to one-tenth of a second in a thousand years.

Live Stock Is Improving Fast

Officials Think Tendency Shows Influence of Educational Work.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Participation of live stock owners in the systematic campaign to improve domestic animals shows several interesting trends in live stock evolution. During the seven and one-half years that the federal-state plan has been in operation the enrollment of new participants has been continuous, averaging about two hundred a month. Live stock officials of the United States Department of Agriculture consider that this tendency shows the gradual influence of educational and demonstration work.

Many Breeds Represented.

Another noticeable trend is the many breeds and classes represented. The kind of stock raised by twenty-five owners in Kentucky, who late in April officially joined the army of pure-bred sire users, illustrates the wide range of animals involved in this useful work. Among the principal breeds undergoing improvement at the hands of these progressive stock owners are Jersey, Guernsey, Holstein, Shorthorn, and Angus cattle; Chester-White and Poland-China swine; and various breeds of chickens in which Leghorns and Plymouth Rocks predominate.

Lithographed Barn Sign.

Persons co-operating with the various states and the Department of Agriculture receive a lithographed barn sign suitable for display on their premises. The sole requirement is the written agreement to use pure-bred sires for all classes of live stock kept and to follow systematic breeding methods leading to the improvement of herds and flocks. The department furnishes suitable printed matter on the principles of live stock breeding. Frequent reports show that resulting improvement of the animals raised under such a plan adds greatly to their utility and sale value.

Corn-Belt Farmers Will

Keep Out Harmful Borer

Not content with keeping close tabs on the progress of the corn-borer clean-up campaign in Ohio and neighboring states, the corn-belt farmer farther west is already taking steps to keep the borer out, according to reports received by the United States Department of Agriculture.

Iowa has appropriated $200,000 and other corn-belt states have appropriated like sums for corn-borer research within recent months. Engineers are trying to develop machinery that will make it easier to grow corn in the presence of the borer. Plant breeders are hoping to develop varieties of corn that will circumvent the attacks of the borer. Realizing that a change in usual farm practice may be necessary, many midwestern farmers are now studying the best ways of making such changes. In northern Indiana, although the borer has been found only in six northeastern counties, farmers have offered to clean up their fields on the chance that their stalks might be harboring some borers. Blazing oil has been used to burn any stubble that might possibly be infested.

Summer Care of Calves

Is of Much Importance

If the young calf is turned out to pasture he should be furnished shelter from the hot sun, suggests Horace Jones, instructor in dairy husbandry at the North Carolina State college. Calves that have had indoor care, when turned out without shelter, develop blisters on their backs and are easy prey for winged pests. A cheap shed of some sort furnishes excellent refuge for the young calf during the day.

If a number of calves are placed in the same pasture and are of such age that milk must be fed, it is necessary that a row of stanchions be provided in which to tie them while being fed and for a few minutes afterward. Each calf should be fed separately. Too often a number of calves are fed from a trough. The result is that the large calves gorge themselves while the weaker ones do not receive enough milk. "Bulk" feeding is a very poor practice. Calves do very well on pasture and can be cared for in this manner more economically than in any other way. Care must be taken, however, to see that they receive what additional care is necessary.

Agricultural Items

The city and suburban garden can harbor the corn borer just as the cornfield can.

Grapevines of varieties which grow vigorously usually do best when pruned and trained to the Kniffin system.

Pear growers will be interested in a new material for the control of pear psylla. It consists of a mixture in equal parts of hydrated lime and plaster of paris together with 1 per cent nicotine.

If you believe a dollar saved is a dollar earned, try borrowing money at the bank at the rate of 6 per cent a year so you can take advantage of the 10 per cent discount for cash within ten days.

U. S. Land, Just "Found," Slated for Park Site

Washington.—Land that the federal government has possessed for 80 years in the mountains of northern Alabama has just been "discovered" by search in the records of the federal land office.

The surveyor who mapped the territory in 1847 for allocation to settlers seems to have been daunted when he came to the brink of May's gulf, a beautiful gorge ten miles long and a quarter to a half-mile wide. Or perhaps he concluded that no one ever would want it. Anyway, he mapped only to the brink on either side, drew two lines marking the bluffs and labeled them "perpendicular bluffs 300 to 500 feet high," and let it go at that.

The state legislature is expected to buy the territory for a park in accordance with a federal law passed last year permitting transfer of such tracts to the states.

Wedding Scene Ready, Bridegroom Skips Out

Liberty, Mo.—Rev. H. H. Luetzow of the Methodist church in Liberty was astonished when a prospective bridegroom left the minister's home on a pretext of "saying a word to the taxi driver" and never returned.

The prospective bride, a thirty-five-year-old widow from Kansas City, barely had enough money to pay her fare back to Kansas City.

A man giving the name of Morris F. Long, forty years old, appeared before the county recorder with the woman and obtained a license. The taxi driver said the man told him he had changed his mind about getting married.

He drew a revolver and held it against the driver's head, saying:

"I won't hurt you if you drive me back to Kansas City just as fast as you can."

The man left the taxicab in Kansas City.

Air Mail Service Shows Big Increase

Washington.—Use of the air mail has shown marked increase since the new 10 cents per half ounce rate went into effect and April business established a record, Second Assistant Postmaster General W. Irving Glover announced.

Approximately 1,800,000 letters were carried over the 14 contract air mail routes during April and contractors were paid $133,129 for their services. Air mails over the transcontinental and New York-Chicago overnight routes have shown a corresponding increase because of the new rate.

LISTS 862 KINDS OF FOREST TREES

Forest Service Makes Check of Species.

Washington.—There are 862 species of forest trees in this country, according to the revised "Check List of the Forest Trees of the United States," just issued by the forest service, United States Department of Agriculture. If the different varieties and hybrids were added the total of the different forms of forest trees would reach 1,177.

Of all the trees that make up our forests, 182 species are of special interest because of the commercially useful timber of other products they supply, the publication points out. However, it is indicated that the number of important species cannot remain constant, changing from time to time with the development of commercial needs.

The previous check list of trees, compiled 28 years ago, listed but 604 different trees. The enormous increase in the number of trees that have become known since that time is due to the addition of newly discovered trees and the separation of tree species that previously were not distinguished from each other. In the new edition each of the different trees is designated by its proper technical name and by the common name adopted by the forest service.

It has long been the endeavor of the forest service to standardize the common names of trees, so that not only the trees as they are met with in the forests, but the lumber cut from these trees, shall be known by these names. The importance in trade relations of such standardization of common names cannot be overestimated. Failure to use standard common names for important timber trees and their woods has led to troublesome and expensive litigation.

"The one great object of all books on our trees," says the publication, "is to acquaint the public with the different trees we have and the names by which they are known. If the present confusion of common names of trees can be ended by general agreement on standard names for the different species, this object will be obtained more speedily."

To Wage Poison War on Cabbage Maggots

Corrosive Sublimate Guns
Useful for Purpose.

New tactics are to be used against cabbage maggots this year by Del-Bay Farms, of Bridgeton, N. J. Instead of using the customary method of hoeing around the young cabbage plants to remove maggot eggs, the company will poison the pest with corrosive sublimate.

With the new method, the young cabbage plants are watched after they are set in the field. When eggs of the maggot fly are found, which under ordinary conditions will be within four or six days after the setting, the Del-Bay Farms' workmen will go into action with their corrosive sublimate guns. Instructions have been issued to apply the solution on the plants for a space of about two inches above the ground so that it will run down to the roots. A second application will be made ten days later.

The Del-Bay Farms company estimates that this treatment, including materials and labor, will cost about $15 an acre for each application, which is considerably below the cost of the old method.

C. H. Nissley, extension specialist in vegetable growing for the New Jersey State College of Agriculture, asserts that corrosive sublimate has also been used for checking the ravages of cabbage maggots on cauliflower and radishes. The chemical can be obtained at any drug store. For cabbage maggot control, it is dissolved at the rate of one ounce to eight or ten gallons of water and about one-half a cupful of the solution applied to each plant.

Control Melon Aphid by Application of Nicotine

The melon aphid, which attacks watermelons, muskmelons, cucumbers and like crops, is effectively controlled by the application of nicotine either as a spray or dust, says the United States Department of Agriculture. This insect, frequently called the melon louse, is very small, varies in color from light green to dark green, and the wingless forms are louse-like in appearance.

The pest has more than 40 known natural insect enemies, which in some measure check its ravages, according to Bulletin No. 1490-F, "The Melon Aphid and Its Control." When conditions are favorable for its development, however, artificial control becomes necessary.

The winged forms of the aphid develop on other food plants and fly to the melon and cucumber vines, where they feed on the underside of the leaves, which curl, wither and die. Since the insects are capable of causing wholesale destruction on short notice, it is important that a constant lookout be kept for any sign of the pest and control measures applied promptly.

The bulletin contains a general description of the melon aphid, the nature of its attack, distribution, food plants, seasonal history, insect enemies, and methods of control. A copy may be obtained free, as long as the supply lasts, upon request to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Bichloride Is Safest for Sweet Potato Dip

Growers will do well to continue using mercuric chloride for the control of certain sweet potato diseases, in the opinion of R. F. Poole, associate plant pathologist at the New Jersey agricultural experiment station. Experiments indicate that a number of new organic mercury compounds now on the market must be used with caution. These substances control the diseases very well but also poison the roots of the plants and thereby reduce sprout development to a considerable degree.

Until this bad effect of the new compounds is overcome, growers will get better results from the old mercuric chloride or, as it is sometimes called, bichloride of mercury, dipping method. In making the solution for this, one ounce of the bichloride is used in eight gallons of water. By immersing the seed potatoes in this for ten minutes, the grower can destroy scurf, black rot, soft rot, and stem rot organisms on the surface of the potatoes.

No solution is effective, Doctor Poole adds, unless healthy seed is selected. The only function of the seed treatment is to destroy organisms resting on the potatoes before they begin to enter the skin and young sprouts. Once they have entered, no surface treatment can reach them.

Bad Odors and Flavors Found in Milk or Cream

It is well-known to everybody who has handled milk or cream, that both will take on odors of all kinds. Cream which is delivered to creameries frequently has odors and flavors ranging from gasoline, kerosene, potato, fruit, to dish-rag, cow and stable. These odors are a part of the cream. When such cream is delivered to the creamery the buttermaker cannot sift, strain, or force these odors from the cream. He may drive off some of the milder odors by pasteurizing and cover up others, for the time being, but the odors and flavors are there, and if given time will affect the butter.

SURPRISE PARTY

By the Program Committee of the Business and Professional Women's Club.

The surprise which was supposed to be staged by the program committee of the Business and Professional Women's Club following their regular meeting at their club rooms last evening, proved to be a surprise to the members of the committee also. At the meeting in the club rooms George Griffith delighted the members present with one of his delightful chalk talks, which proved very amusing and at the same time aided them to use some of their gray matter in responding to his questions.

At the conclusion of the business meeting which followed, Mr. Griffith's talk to the utter surprise of all present. Mrs. Joseph Work invited them to her home where a birthday party had been prepared in honor of her little daughter, Julia Jane's second birthday. The guests found their places at small tables by means of place cards bearing Mother Goose rhymes and which were decorated with beautiful roses, where delicious refreshments were served. Julia Jane proved a very delightful hostess and exhibited to the members of the club her bank book which had been opened by the club for her shortly after her arrival. She was the first baby born to a member of the club after its origination.

The affair coming as such a surprise and being delightfully carried out was thoroughly enjoyed. Julia Jane was the recipient of felicitations from all present.

New Seed May Make Linen Cheap as Cotton

Belfast, Ireland.—Superflax seed which, it is said, may make linen as cheap as cotton goods is nearing perfection in experiments conducted by the Ulster Linen Research association, co-operating with the British and Ulster governments.

The new seed now produces tow double the length of ordinary flax. The tow also is without the troublesome sticky substances which necessitate the present expensive hand process in preparing the raw material for market. It can easily be worked by machinery, it is said, thus eliminating the great numbers of hand workers now engaged.

Two thousand acres in Ulster and a tract in Somerset, England, will be planted to the new seed this year, and preparations are under way to introduce it in the Dakotas. Negotiations have been going on for some time with agricultural officials of Oregon. They are said to be much interested and to have promised to give the seed a thorough test.

One Guess as to What Animal He Resembled
The clean-up of the New York stage led Newton Booth Tarkington to say at an Indianapolis reception:
"A clean-up was needed. For money—don't be deceived about high-art talk—for money and money alone our stage had become about the ugliest thing that ever happened."
"Yes, it was so ugly that it reminds me of a story."
"The story is about a very ugly man who called one afternoon on a fascinating young widow. As he sat with the widow very happily over a cupful of tea and a cigarette her little daughter came in from school."
"The child stared at the man for a moment in silence. Then she burst out in wide-eyed indignation:
"Hiss for shame! I seen you at the zoo yesterday without your clothes on!"

Milady's Apparel Takes Many Bows
Numbers of Ornamental Themes Are Offered for Spring and Summer.

Perhaps never before in the history of fashion have details taken on so significant a complexion as this season. With the straight line silhouette once more firmly established in the good graces of the mode, with the hemline no longer a matter for criticism or discussion, the natural corollary is that smartness for spring and summer is to be governed, largely by discriminating emphasis on the proper details. So many of these ornamental themes have been offered for spring and summer, says a fashion writer in the New York Herald-Tribune, that it is easy to fall into the mistake of selecting some inconsequential embellishment which will be quite without fashion importance.

There is one outstanding detail this season upon which you can stake your all with a free conscience—and that is the bow. Indeed, it might not be stretching a point to deem the bow as the most significant theme that 1927 has thus far offered. The bow is yet too young in the devious ways of the mode to have joined any clique. It will be found at the waistline and it will be found as well at the neckline or just beneath the shoulders. Premet, for example, finishes off many round and square necklines by the bow, while other distinguished couturiers favor different determinants of the silhouette. Anywhere at all will meet the requirements of fashion, with the shoulders thus far the favored haven. Nor are there any strictures as to length or width on any of the bows. Some are broad and flowing, others quite narrow and demurely petite. For the moment the bow itself is the thing—its form is secondary.

The 1927 Neckline.
Ranging well up among the major incidentals of the new mode are the Vionnet neckline and the suddenly revived nose veil. It will be recalled that last year Madeleine Vionnet attracted sharp interest among the fashionables by the overnightly famous Vionnet sleeve. At this writing there is definite prospect that her 1927 neckline will attract just as favorable notice. This particular line has been called square, but it is not square in the ordinary sense of the word—it might better be described as straight. It reaches from shoulder to shoulder, describing a straight line between them. Especially in the blouses that go with the new tailors has this line been effectively used.

As for the half-length veil, it has been crescendoing its way through the mode since an inconspicuous introduction along the Riviera. How long its tenure will be is not important. For this season it is favorably sanctioned by Paris, and inasmuch as it adds a really unique note to current styles our counsel is that you adopt it, occasionally at least. Strictly speaking, it is not in the tempo of the current mode.

one of the smartest if it becomes an integral theme in your new wardrobe. On the subject of sleeves much has been said this spring. The curious conflict between the daytime and evening modes whereby the latter sailed into uncharted channels by adopting long, full sleeves for the robe du soir, while the former reverted to post-war flapperism by sponsoring daytime frocks with no sleeves at all, has attracted wide comment. We have not hesitated definitely to condemn the sleeveless street frock. Despite which we cheerfully commend the long-sleeved evening dress to your particular attention. Its virtues are these—it is undeniably effective, it is decidedly different and, in these days of generous revelations, it is surely unique. Exploit it these warmer evenings and your place will be unquestioned in the model ranks.

Must Recognize Youth.
College professors who once preached loudest against the youth movement are now engaged in adjusting themselves to it—fashion critics who decried contemporary fashions as being a flare-back to barbarism have suddenly stopped baying the moon to

Jersey Jumper With Black and White Polka Dot Skirt.

Join the procession. And save only those gentle souls who wear old lace and breathe in an atmosphere of lavender, the mesdames of the mode have joined the expressionistic movement in clothes.

And there you have a really curious situation. Observe some smart society matron of today arrayed in perhaps Lanvin's zouave frock. Then turn to a prewar newspaper file, or family album, and look at a photograph of the same lady gayly decked in the majestic garb of the earlier years of this century. It cannot be that this ever so feminine lady of 1912 has completely metamorphosed into the straight, semi-masculine type of today. It must be that sometimes there comes a surging desire to revert to the days before realism had routed romance. The ingrained manners and breeding of a score and more years cannot be cast off in five or six. And yet, to every outward viewpoint, that has happened. The knee-revealing hemline and a conforming silhouette which looks as though it were individually draped have been adopted unanimously by the same ladies who not so long ago wore the most demure of frills and furbelows and gloried in them.

Follow the Crowds.
They have been adopted here because Fashion has very little to do with personal preferences. As the crowds go you will go, and while it is courageous and valiant enough to march in the opposite direction, you can't get far unless you're very calloused to ridicule. From the viewpoint of the mode, upstream is the diametrically wrong course.

If you would be chic this spring and summer, and for at least several seasons after that, it is your inescapable duty to conform to the modal tenets of the moment. No matter what secret longings you may have for the stately ankle-length skirt, it behooves you to terminate the hemline no lower than a few inches below the knees.

Often enough fashion writers have vociferously preached the doctrine of greater femininity in dress, more mature effects and what not, displaying at the same time some sketches of the mode from Paris which were as young and masculine as you could imagine. If you are one of those whose heart is still with the Victorian regime, there is your cue. Preach gentler dress as loud and long as you will, decry some of the very vulnerable themes of modernistic styles to all the corners of the earth. In that way you may stir up some excellent propaganda which will later bear fruit. Exploit at every opportunity the most gentle versions of this seldom feminine mode. But remember that modernism in dress is still the only key to chic, and in general wear without compromise or exception the expressionistic garb of the moment. You may preach, in a word, a doctrine you do not dare to practice. Unless, of course, yours is the unregardful courage of the dowagers from Back Bay.

DR. FRANK LOOMIS

On Witness Stand in His Trial For Murdering His Wife.

Detroit, June 7.—(UP.)—For four hours today, Dr. Frank M. Loomis, accused of beating his wife to death, calmly sat on the witness stand and answered questions fired at him by Prosecutor Robert M. Toms.

The courtroom, where the doctor is being tried on a first degree murder charge, was packed with interested spectators who sat almost breathless while the prosecutor and stoical physician duelled back and forth.

Yesterday, under direct questioning of his attorney, Louis J. Colombo, the doctor described circumstances under which he returned home to find his wife's body, and the manner in which police obtained statements from him.

The physician showed the first sign of a possible breakdown when he realistically re-enacted his entry into the sunroom of his home and picked up the bloody body. He was dressed in the blood-stained clothes and several times pushed back tears which welled into his eyes.

Today he termed action of officers "cruel" in that they refused to permit him to see friends, relatives or an attorney from Tuesday evening, when the murder occurred, until Thursday afternoon.

Dr. Loomis declared that when released on Saturday, following the murder on a writ of habeas corpus, he went home and took his children for an automobile ride.

Toms asked Dr. Loomis if he had ever, during the three days' questioning by police, made a "misstatement."

"Not that I know of," Loomis answered straightforwardly.

but that should not bother you. It is attractive and it is feminizing, and the smart woman will lose no opportunity to stress the all too few softer aspects of fashion.

Another worth-while fetish of the current mode is the one-side effect, which emphasizes a noticeable detail at one side only. Thus Vionnet shows numerous frocks and coats in surplice fashion with a decided flare on either the right or left side. Drecoll includes a number of smart models which are draped at only a single side, as well as some others which feature yokes and panels, these latter also confined to one side. In fact, throughout the various summer collections there is a significant emphasis of this theme, one of whose outstanding merits is its effective breaking up of the boyish straight line. Not only are you quite safe in adopting it this summer, but you will mark yourself indelibly as

Of the Big-House Family

By CLARISSA MACKIE

(Copyright.)

WHEN the Allenbys lost all their money and were obliged to leave the Big House, as it was locally called, they were able to occupy a small cottage not far away. When they were comfortably settled there, Ann and her mother—for the father had died before his ill-judged investments had proved to be utterly worthless—were cozy and comfortable enough, though they missed the largeness and space that they had always been accustomed to. The cottage garden was a thing of wonder, for dozens of roots were brought from Big House, and their old gardener, Jacob, had made them a wonderful vegetable garden that was surrounded with more flowers!

"Mother, darling, I know we lack the luxury and the motors of Big House," said Ann, one lovely June day, "but aren't you a little bit happy?"

Mrs. Allenby smiled contentedly at her charming daughter. "I am happier, dear, than I have been since I was first married," she admitted. "Your father and I began our married life in this wee house."

"Mother! And you never told me!" exclaimed Ann.

"I wanted you to teach yourself to like the change, without favorable prejudice. You know, of course," said Mrs. Allenby, "that Big House has been sold—a small family, I hear, mother and son, they say. He's an electrical engineer. When they are thoroughly settled, I shall, of course call."

Half an hour later, the gate opened and a young man appeared carrying a shining milk pail. Ann liked him at once, because he was big and so clean and thoroughly good looking.

"I came to beg a pail of your spring water, Mrs. Allenby," he said. "We have just arrived at Big House and something has happened to the spring water pump there—at least it is out of commission."

"Why, of course," said hospitable Mrs. Allenby. "My daughter will direct you," and she resumed her novel, while Ann with a little nod of assent put aside her sewing and joined him on the red brick path.

"Big House is a fine old mansion," observed the young man as they walked along, "but I do miss a few things—such as this old brick path for instance."

"I love them, too," said Ann. "I believe mother forgot to introduce us I am Ann Allenby."

"And I am Ronald Smith," he laughed. "One of the great Smith clan!" They laughed together as they reached the spring house.

"Then, you are a member of Big House family," offered Ann.

He nodded carelessly. "There is only mother and I—the rest of the family have all married and gone off—even father has taken a trip to South America!"

Ann made some happy response, and went back to the veranda. She went on sewing dutifully. Then Mrs. Allenby said abruptly:

"A rather nice looking man—I suppose he is the butler or chauffeur."

Ann gasped, and then a dimple came into her cheek; what a funny joke on mother! she thought.

"Have you ever seen any of the Smiths, mother—of course, I mean the new family next door?"

"No," said Mrs. Allenby, resuming her book.

Every day Ronald Smith appeared with his pail for water. One morning he brought a great armful of yellow roses, that had been Mrs. Allenby's pride and joy at Big House. "Mother sent these to Mrs. Allenby," he said simply, and went on around by the brick walk.

"Mother!" exclaimed Mrs. Allenby. "Never let him know that I thought him the butler!"

"Or the chauffeur!" laughed Ann, and then she told her mother what she had learned that first day.

"Then, he must be the electrical engineer," decided Mrs. Allenby. "I wonder," she mused, "why he did not repair their pump after that first day."

"I wonder!" echoed Ann, but there was a pink flush in her cheeks, and a tender look in her eyes, for her meeting with young Smith, though brief and had been full of interest. Mrs. Allenby put aside her plan of summer idleness, and sending for the village taxi cab she paid a state call upon Mr. Smith, who turned out to be so delightful a woman of her own social rank, with so many congenial acquaintances who were also friends of Mr. Allenby's, that a very warm friendship grew rapidly between them.

"Ronnie is just spending the summer with me," explained Mrs. Smith on lay.

The two ladies exchanged a smile for Ronald Smith and Ann had fallen desperately in love with each other and it was not long before they became engaged.

Then Ronald announced his desire to live with Mrs. Allenby at White Cottage. "Of course, you can have a housemaid—and more, if you wish," he told Ann and her mother one day "but for my part, I can be both butler and chauffeur, if necessary!"

SUGGESTION FOR UTILITIES COMMISSIONER

M. H. Broughton, Railroad Man Considered as Successor to F. B. Mauller.

Governor Donahey has been presented with a new name for appointment as a member of the Public Utilities commission, to succeed Frank B. Mauller, the only Republican member on the commission, whom the governor personally is antagonistic to and will remove the moment he finds he can do so under the law. Mauller who was appointed by Governor Harry L. Davis, has hung on during the almost three terms of Governor Donahey and refuses to leave the place until the supreme court says he is obliged to. The fight between the governor and Mauller is as interesting a phase of public life, as anything Columbus affords as the present.

Going on the assumption that Mauller will finally have to go the various railroad organizations of the state have united on the appointment of M. H. Broughton, of Columbus, trainmaster on the B. & O. railroad, between Columbus and Newark and a railroad man of more than 30 years experience. Moreover he is a Republican and meets the political exigencies of the case, since the successor to Mauller must belong to that party under the law.

A number of delegations, representing various railroad organizations have seen the governor personally to ask the appointment of Mr. Broughton and his name has been urged by John C. Sullivan, a former member, under appointment of Governor Harmon, of the state board of public service, which had to do with utilities matters and before that a prominent railroad official for many years.

It is made plain to the governor that since the utilities commission deals to a very large extent with questions which affect questions of transportation and transportation companies, one member of the organization should be a practical railroad man.

There is not a city in the state where some members of a railroad brotherhood have not joined in asking the appointment of Mr. Broughton.

EX-CHIEF OF POLICE LENGEL IN JAIL

CHARGED WITH THE MURDER OF CANTON NEWSPAPER EDITOR

Don Mellett; July 16, 1926—Lengel is the Fifth Person Accused For the Murder. He is Accused of Having Laid the Plot—Indictment Is Returned On Basis of Story Told By Detective Streitenberger, Now Serving Life In the Pen.

Seranus A. Lengel, 65 years old, deposed Canton police chief, is in Stark county jail at Canton, facing a charge of first degree murder in conjunction with the slaying of Don R. Mellett, Canton publisher, following return of an indictment against him by a special grand jury Wednesday.

Lengel, indicted as a result of a confession by Floyd E. Streitenberger, former detective and close police department associate of Lengel, is charged with having been one of the chief instigators of the plot against Mellett.

In his confession Streitenberger charged that he had acted as a go-between for Lengel and Louis Mazer, also charged with first degree murder, when the plot against the young editor was hatched and carried out.

Lengel, according to Streitenberger's story, was eager to "get even" with Mellett for editorial attacks made against him and efforts to have him ousted as police chief when he had only one more year to serve before he was eligible for pension.

Streitenberger added that Lengel feared other knowledge Mellett had gained a short time before he was slain might cost him his job and lead to prosecution on charges of malfeasance of office if Mellett proved allegations of protection by Lengel and other police department officials of certain vice interests.

Streitenberger also declared Lengel was a member of the group which framed the famous "sick dog" alibi for Streitenberger and Mazer following the murder. The "alibi" sought to place Mazer at Streitenberger's home caring for the former detective's "sick" dog at the time of the crime was committed.

Lengel, Streitenberger charged, laid the plans for the plot against Mellett and conveyed them to Mazer thru Streitenberger, Mazer, the confessor said, hired Patrick Eugene McDermott and another gunman, as yet unnamed, offered by Ben Rudner to "do the job."

Lengel's dismissal from office was upheld by a civil service commission last August after a second hearing on charges of incompetency and inefficiency. He also was charged specifically with having "bungled" the Mellett murder inquiry.

The former chief first was dismissed from office in the spring of 1926, but was reinstated by a civil service commission composed of Price Janson, John W. Burris and James A. Allardice. Charges of inefficiency and neglect of duty were brought against Janson and Burris, whose votes reinstated Lengel, and they were discharged from the commission a week before the editor was shot down last July 16.

A new commission, with Allardice as its chairman, then upheld Lengel's second dismissal.

The grand jury, called specially May 23, worked on the indictment for four days. Streitenberger appeared before the panel May 23, immediately following his conviction and sentence to life imprisonment, when he signed his confession, implicating Lengel.

The former sleuth, however, broke down and was on the verge of a collapse when he told his story the first time. He was taken to the penitentiary while the grand jury session was recessed until last Monday. Streitenberger repeated his story along with the testimony of other witnesses.

Included among them were Mrs. Streitenberger, Mazer, former County School Superintendent A. J. Smith, former Patrolman Homer Moore and William Brumme, Massillon salesman, who testified during the Rudner trial that he was introduced to Lengel in Rudner's hardware store at Massillon several days before Mellett was assassinated. Mazer was called by the grand jury's request.

Patrick Eugene McDermott, Nanty Glo, Pennsylvania, "hard guy" one of the gunmen, who shot Mellett; Ben Rudner, Massillon hardware merchant and son of a millionaire Canton junk dealer, who was the "pay-off man," and Floyd E. Streitenberger, ousted city detective and henchman, of Lengel, are serving life sentences in Ohio penitentiary, Streitenberger and McDermott without hope of pardon.

Louis Mazer, Canton jungle prince is in Stark county jail awaiting the outcome of the case against Lengel. Mazer has been promised immunity if it is found he told "the truth" in his confession which led to Streitenberger's conviction.

TWIN BANDITS CAPTURED AT STEUBENVILLE

Accused are Wanted in Oregon For Killing Three Men in a Train Holdup.

Ray and Roy D'Antremont, twin brothers, on whose heads nearly $20,000 in rewards have been posted by Uncle Sam, were caught Wednesday in Steubenville. They are wanted in Oregon for the killing of a postal clerk and three trainmen in a passenger train holdup at Siskiyou, Oregon, about four years ago. Assistant U. S. District Attorney W. B. Bartels said the two captured have been identified as the bandits.

Mr. Bartels received word about a month ago that the two brothers were believed to be hiding at Steubenville. The agent of the bureau of investigation who made the arrest Wednesday works out of the Columbus office. Bartels said, but he declined to make public his name.

Hugh D'Antremont, a third brother was captured recently in the Philippine Islands.

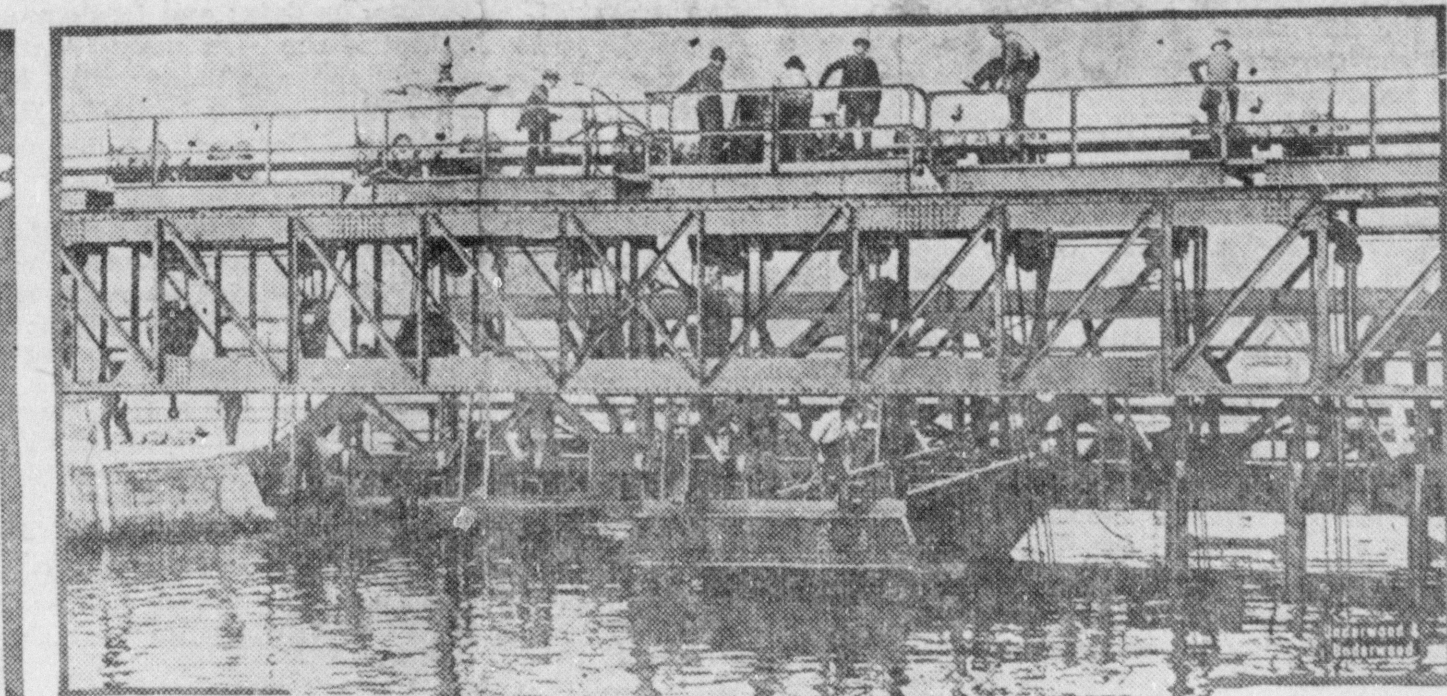

The youths said they had been working in the Wheeling Steel Corporation mill in Steubenville since January.

Capture of Roy took place when he went to work. Then the officers returned to a rooming house in the foreign section where the brothers had been living. One of the detectives knocked at the door and when Ray appeared told him his brother had been injured at the mill.

Ray rushed out to an automobile which he had been told was waiting to take him to the hospital and was covered by guns of the waiting officers. Two guns were found in the house belonging to the brothers.

The D'Antremonts will be held at Steubenville until Friday when they will be arraigned or removed to Columbus.

MADE SHORTER MONEY WILL LAST LONGER

New Bills Will be Harder to Counterfeit--One Year is Required For Making.

Paper money is to be made shorter but will be expected to last longer. This information is contained in a statement given out in Columbus by the Ohio Industrial Lenders' association, an organization of small loan companies, and is based on information from the treasury department at Washington.

The change will affect all United States currency except national bank notes, and is to be made in the interest of convenience and economy.

It is proposed to reduce the size of the bills from 7 7/16 by 3 1/8 inches to 6 1/8 by 2 5/8 inches and it is expected that the change will result in a saving of one-third in the cost of producing the bills. The smaller size will require the folding of the bills but once when placing them in a pocketbook, and this, it is believed will tend to promote the life of the money, as the fewer the creases the less wear on the fibre of the currency. The new bills also will tend to make counterfeiting more difficult officials believe. The new size is the same as that now used in Philippine currency.

It will take a year to manufacture and age the paper required for the new bills and in that time the new plates will be ready. It is proposed to issue bills in the larger denominations first.

JUDGE SOWERS PASSED AWAY IN PORTSMOUTH

End Came After Three Days' Illness--Was Guest of His Friend Harry Taylor.

Judge Daniel H. Sowers one of the most popular and highly respected citizens of Columbus, died in Schirman hospital, Portsmouth, Wednesday afternoon, June 8.

While visiting with Mrs. Sowers at the home of Harry E. Taylor Judge Sowers was stricken with bronchial pneumonia on Sunday and passed away three days later.

Judge Sowers was born in Champaign county sixty years ago and he graduated from Ohio Wesleyan university in 1889. In 1891, he was admitted to the practice of law and became a member of the firm of Huggins & Sowers.

He was serving his second term as common pleas judge of Franklin county and was president of the Ohio Association of Common Pleas Judges.

Judge Sowers was active in church work and also took a keen interest in Masonic work and had been elected to receive the Thirty-third degree in Boston next September.

Besides his wife, he is survived by one son, one brother and one sister; The funeral services will be held from St. Paul's Episcopal church Friday afternoon at two o'clock.

JULY FOURTH CELEBRATION SCIPPO PARK

A Fourth of July celebration is being planned by Motor Transport Co., 145 O. N. G. The committee in charge has contracted for Scippo park on the Scioto Trail south of the city to hold a celebration on the Fourth and all week.

At two o'clock there will be a parade of the Sir Knights to the center of town and there will be two or more bands in line.

Entertainment for everybody. All Masons and their families invited. Don't miss it.

SOCIAL CALENDAR

Mrs. Lawrence Johnson entertained Tuesday with a luncheon and shower in honor of Miss Evelyn Teegardin, a bride-elect.

The members of the Ebenezer Social circle were entertained at the home of Miss Helen Valentine Wednesday evening. Some sixty members were present. Her assisting hostesses were Mrs. George Emerson and Mrs. Turney L. Pontius.

The marriage of Mr. Roy Dooley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Dooley, of London, Ohio, and Miss Theureda Boots, of Williamsport was solemnized by the Rev. William P. Clark, of St. Patrick's church London, Wednesday. After the ceremony, Mr. Dooley, who is the manager of the Madison county Tire Service, took his bride to Montreal. Miss Boots is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Boots and has been a very successful teacher in the Williamsport school for the past few years.

Miss Kathryn Sanders, who is a student at the Conservatory of Music, Capital university, Columbus, was one of the ones to be congratulated at the recent recital given in Loy hall. She sang two solos; "Love's Benediction," Silver and "Spring Night" Schumann.

Miss Sanders will arrive home June 16, to spend her vacation with her mother, Mrs. E. A. Allen.

Secret Governing Board

Cabal means a secret cabinet or governing clique whose measures are unpopular. Such a clique existed in the reign of Charles II of England, composed of Clifford, Ashley, Buckingham, Arlington and Lauderdale. The initial letters of their names form the word Cabal.

PLAN TO HARNESS BAY OF FUNDY TIDE

Promoters Hope to Develop 100,000 Horse Power.

Toronto, Ont.—The tides of the Bay of Fundy, famous in song and story and known to every schoolboy student of geography, are about to be harnessed by industry, according to New Brunswick promoters' plans, which ought to be awarded a prize for novelty and which in principle are as simple as they are novel.

The New Brunswick scheme must not be confused with the Maine project submitted to the people a year or two ago, under which Passamaquoddy bay, marking the eastern terminus of the boundary between Canada and the United States, was to be turned into a huge mill pond. Passamaquoddy forms a large arm at the opening of the Bay of Fundy. The New Brunswick scheme is to be tried 125 miles north-east of the very tip of the neck of the bottle.

Nowhere else in the world is there the curious tidal phenomenon that recurs twice every 24 hours in the Bay of Fundy. The tide, which ebbs and flows gently on open coasts, here finds itself subject to unusual restrictions. Not only is there an unusually long, gradually narrowing inlet, but the bottom of the sea shelves gently upward, so that the inflowing tide has pressure put upon it from both sides and from the bottom. It therefore rises to unusual height.

River Gets Heavy Tide.
At the tip of the Bay of Fundy begins the channel of the Petitcodiac river. And into this little channel surges twice a day the mighty volume of Fundy's tides.

As a river the Petitcodiac does not amount to much, but as a tidal basin it is unique. When the flowing tide reaches Moncton, 25 miles up the river from its mouth, it has so piled upon itself that it comes in a wall of water.

This wall, called a "bore," making a noise like the rumble of a train, can be heard miles away. In the spring ice cakes as big as box cars float seaward with the ebbing tide and are tumbled back with the flow faster than a man can walk.

Engineers claim this great volume of energy now going to waste can be turned into electric power. Their plan is to build a rock-filled dam nearly a mile long across the mouth of the Petitcodiac. Twice a day when the tide is running in three locks in the dam will be opened. This will fill to the brim 41 miles of tidal basin. Then the locks will close.

Get 100,000 Horse Power.
By lowering the imprisoned water two to five feet twice daily, it is estimated 100,000 horse power can be generated at a price lower than at Niagara.

As part of the scheme a spill basin will be provided for by the smaller tidal basin of the Memramcook river. The rock from which material for the dam will be taken is the same rock from which Fifth avenue's famous "brown-stone fronts" were built.

Critics of the scheme fear that the silt and mud of the rivers may bring disaster to the plans. When an open basin scoured twice a day by the tides is turned into a setting basin, trouble, they say, will result.

But the promoters, who include Dexter Cooper, an engineer who has long been studying the problem of Fundy's tides; C. F. Erlson, and H. M. Blair of New York, and a number of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia financiers, are sanguine. Prospect of a local power development has produced great interest in the languishing maritime provinces.

MERGER DREAM

Van Swearingen Tells I. C. C. of His Plans.

Washington, June 7.—(UP).—O. P. Van Swearingen, finance genius, and one of the moving spirits in the proposed C. & O.-Pere Marquette-Erie merger, is ready to take $10,000,000 under the market price of his Erie and Pere Marquette holdings to help make his merger dream come true.

He told the Interstate Commerce Commission today the price set by the C. & O. special committee on his stock was that much below the market value, and he was ready even to sell his option holdings at cost if this were deemed essential.

In appealing to the commission as chairman of the C. & O. to speed action on the merger application, the comparatively youthful money wizard said the C. & O.'s interest was for him the dominant interest, with his "personal interest wholly subordinate."

FEMININE FEET GROWING LARGER

Lima, June 7.—Along with a natural complexion and long hair, bid farewell to another attribute of the maiden of yesterday—her tiny feet.

A local shoe salesman, after a long and purely analytic observation, says that the average feminine pedal extremities have increased a half-inch in length and a full size in width during the last 10 years.

"In 1917 the average young woman wore a size 4D shoe. Today she takes a 5A," is the way this scientist sums up his analysis.

Dancing, athletics and walking on hard pavements are responsible, he says; and further opines that if the tendency continues, the flapper of today will have a daughter whose "dogs" will rival those of the corner policeman.

MET TO CONSIDER "SAFETY OF LAND"

There were three congresses held in America before the first Continental congress of 1774. The first of these met at New York on May 1, 1690, in response to a call issued by the General Court of Massachusetts—"the first call for a general congress in America." The purpose was to confer on "suitable methods for assisting each other for the safety of the whole land." Seven colonies were invited, of which four attended the congress. The congress of 1754 met at Albany on June 19, for the purpose of negotiating a treaty with the Indians, and also to form a plan of union among the colonies. The "Albany plan," sometimes called "Franklin's plan," was submitted to the assemblies of the several colonies through their governors, and to the king through the agency of the lords of trade, but failed of adoption both in the colonies and in England. The congress of 1765, better known as the "Stamp Act Congress," was held in New York city, opening on October 7, 1765.

Lesson for June 12
PETER DELIVERED FROM PRISON

LESSON TEXT—Acts 12:1-17.
GOLDEN TEXT—Many are the afflictions of the righteous; but the Lord delivereth him out of them all.—Ps. 34:19.
PRIMARY TOPIC—God Takes Care of Peter.
JUNIOR TOPIC—God Answers Prayer for Peter.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—How Does God Deliver Us?
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Power of United Prayer.

I. Peter's Imprisonment (vv. 1-4).
1. By whom (v. 1).
Herod, the grandson of the wicked Herod who slew the innocent children of Bethlehem.

2. The reason (v. 3).
It was to gain the favor of the Jews. Herod was not a Jew, but an Edomite, therefore knew that his success was dependent upon his having the good will of the Jews. Herod for the sake of popularity manifested a deep sympathy for degenerate Judaism. It was but the sympathy of the politician. Since the church had developed so as to be a successful rival of Judaism, indeed was already displacing it, he saw an opportunity to curry favor with the Jews by putting forth his hands against it.

3. The method (v. 4).
He was arrested, put into prison and guarded by four quaternions of soldiers. A quaternion is a guard of four soldiers. Humanly speaking, it was impossible to escape. They had doubtless heard of Peter's escape from jail before, so they thought they would take no risks this time. However, they made one fatal mistake—they left out God.

II. The Church of God in Prayer (v. 5).
The church was at a crisis. Her situation was most grave. James, one of the brethren of the church, was dead, and Peter, the most prominent of all, was in prison. In this desperate strait they did the wise thing—they betook themselves to prayer. It was a noteworthy prayer.

1. It was unto God, not unto men, or to be heard of men. This is a very common fault today. All true prayer is unto God.

2. It was united prayer.
There is peculiar power in the united prayer of God's people.

3. It was an intensely earnest prayer.

It was more than unceasing prayer. It was the earnest desire of the soul as it stretched itself out toward God.

4. It was definite prayer.
They specifically offered prayer to God for Peter. Their prayer was concentrated, definite and specific.

III. Peter Delivered by an Angel (vv. 6-11).

1. Peter sleeping (v. 6).
This shows that he was not greatly disturbed over the matter. The Lord keeps in perfect peace those whose minds are stayed on Him. (Isa. 26:3).

2. Peter leaves the prison (vv. 7-10).
A heavenly light shone in the prison. The angel smote Peter on the side; the chains fell off. Peter put on his clothes and passed by one guard after another through the iron gate out into the city.

3. The effect upon Peter (v. 11).
Although the matter was so wonderful to Peter, even outside his consciousness, when he came to himself he was assured beyond peradventure that God had miraculously delivered him from Herod's wicked hands.

IV. Unconscious Unbelief (vv. 12-19).

1. Behavior of Peter and the church (vv. 12-17).
Peter went to the house of Mary and knocked. The knock was answered by Rhoda who was so overjoyed that she forgot to open the gate, and ran in and told them that Peter was at the gate. The disciples were not prepared for such good news, and even accused her of madness. She, undaunted, insisted. They offered as an explanation that perhaps it might be Peter's guardian angel in his likeness. They got more than they expected. Peter rehearsed unto them the Lord's dealing with him, and instructed them to make these things known unto James and the brethren.

2. The behavior of the soldiers (vv. 18, 19).
There was great agitation among them as to what had become of Peter. This was a serious matter since they were responsible for him. Not being able to account for Peter's escape, Herod commanded that they be put to death. After this Herod went down to Caesarea. Here he was adored as God. Because he arrogated this honor to himself, the Lord smote him. Herod died, but the Word of the Lord grew and multiplied.

Life and Death

It is good when the garden of life and the sepulcher of death are linked with Him who was crucified. He makes the garden tenfold richer and more beautiful. He robs the sepulcher of its terror and gloom.—Rev. Alex. Smellie, D. D.

Cynicism

I hate cynicism a great deal worse than I hate the devil; unless, perhaps, the two were the same thing.—R. L. Stevenson.

TRY SOMETHING NEW IS SUGGESTION

"What shall we have new in our dinner and luncheon menus?" is one of the questions that are often asked and now that the spring days are here, even with the suggestions one receives from the market, do not seem to completely satisfy the home manager—the housewife who does the marketing and planning of menus for her family.

Hot dishes all have their appeal at breakfast, luncheon and dinner.

Hot waffles or cakes for breakfast—a crisp, tasty salad, and a hot creamed dish with hot biscuits for lunch or dinner cannot help but tempt the most critical eater.

Possibly if the housewife who becomes discouraged will check up on what she has served recently, she will find she has gotten into a rut, and repeating week after week the same old standby dishes. We all do it. Every home admits of the same.

Why not try something new? It will not only prove interesting to you in preparing but to the rest of the family who will sample these surprise dishes.

Don't you ever bring home a new recipe from the club luncheon, or borrow one from your best friend? And isn't the effort in preparing it always appreciated?

The markets are loaded down with seasonable, fresh vegetables and fruits, which are selling at a very nominal price, and this is really the season to be eating them—when our systems are demanding them rather than when they are out of season.

At this time of the year we need to think of the mineral salts from the vegetables and the cooling fruits and juices to thin out and tone up the blood.

And, don't forget the greens, both the cooked and the fresh ones—in the form of salads, provide the necessary mineral salts required in the various body processes.

It's a queer thing, but beginning with this season many people begin to lose flesh because of unwise eating. Some of us who wish it would affect us can never lose a pound, while those already fleshy continue to gain, no matter, it seems, what the diet.

Copies Famed StatueEntirely of Matches

Leipzig, Germany.—A monument of industry and patience has been created by Gerhard Mittelstadt, an artisan of Frieberg, Saxony.

It is a miniature reproduction of the famous granite memorial of the battle of Leipzig (1813), fashioned entirely out of burnt matches, 28,732 having been used.

The original monument, a massive pile of stone, looms to a height of nearly 300 feet above the plain in the outskirts of Leipzig, where Napoleon was defeated and the fate of his empire sealed. It was erected in 1913 to commemorate the hundredth anniversary of the battle, which freed Germany from Napoleon's grip, and is called the "Voelkerschlachdenkmal."

The miniature reproduction is about seventeen and one-half inches high. The artisan has not explained where he got all the burnt matches.

Paola, Kan.—On top of one of the shallowest oil fields in the world, the town of Paola is filled with people who either own an oil or gas well or an interest in one. Paola has a population of 3,500 and there are more than 1,200 producing oil wells within the confines of Miami county, of which Paola is the county seat.

The oil underlies the surface in shallow streams and pools. Some of the pools supply oil for 20 years or so and then die down. A pool struck recently in the northwestern part of the county has renewed interest and activity.

Well Costs $1,000.

Oil is found in the field at a depth of about 450 feet. A well costs a little less than $1,000 and if it is a good one the owner stands a chance of being comfortably wealthy. Consequently nearly every adult in town is "taking a chance."

Maps of the field are displayed in hotels, grocery stores, drug stores and dry goods stores and every operator carries his own specially marked map, by which he will show that the development is directly in line with his lease.

Excitement is at a high pitch. Since 1875 these flurries have been coming and going in the town, but none seems to have lost enthusiasm. Employees of the post office formed the Post Office Oil company and drilled a well, the men at the drug store drilled another and the men at the Kandy Kitchen still another. Some hit and some got dry holes.

The town is full of typical stories. Enthusiasts cite the farmer who lived frugally on a small tract for years, barely existing. Then the oil came in and from six small wells he now gets about $1,000 a month. Others cite the case of Herman Miller, a junk dealer, who refused $1,000 for a one-eighth share in a well one day, only to find it was a dry hole the next.

The Miami county pool has been giving up oil for more than 40 years.

A. W. Christie put down the wildcat that opened up the latest pool. He sunk the first well on a location arrived at by the motions of a curved stick. Some believe explicitly in the powers of the stick and others openly deride it in favor of geology.

Good Well in Back Yard.

One of the best known wells is that of W. H. Morehouse, in a back yard in Paola. It came in 12 years ago, flowing 150 barrels a day. It is 450 feet deep and cost about $750 to drill. It still is flowing three barrels a day. When oil was selling at $3.50 a barrel the well was averaging about 15 barrels a day. Several of these back yard oil wells have been in existence from 5 to 12 years.

Back-yard gas wells also are common. Farmers light and heat their homes, barns and yards with the gas. David McCullough even lighted up the highway in front of his farm with gas from his well. On another farm a croquet ground was brightly lighted.

Two deep wells are being sunk in the field and although the shallow pool men scoff at the possibility of their bringing in oil, they have ardent backers.

Alaska Salmon Yield Brings $610,750,038

Washington.—From the island-dotted waterways of Alaska's thousands of miles of coast has come a wealth more precious, more vital than gold. It is the wealth of the sea itself—of the teeming millions of salmon that have been taken from the bosom of the North Pacific and placed on the world's table.

Since Alaska was purchased from Russia, 60 years ago, salmon has led the list of exports from the territory, with $610,750,038 to its credit—a figure which multiplies nearly eighty-five fold the price Uncle Sam paid for the territory.

Despite the mineral wealth of the territory, the salmon exports lead those of gold by $250,000,000.

Thousands of men, many of them native Alaskan Indians, are engaged in salmon fishing or canning and subsidiary industries. The number during 1925 was estimated at more than 25,000. The investment at that time was set at $55,400,000.

Bureau of Fisheries' Navy Gets Ready for Action

Ketchikan, Alaska.—Fish pirates and salmon poachers along the Alaskan coast, the region whence comes many millions of dollars worth of canned fish each year, will confront a serious handicap when the bureau of fisheries' navy, a fleet of 55 armed vessels, gets on the patrol line.

Pirating is trap and scow robbery, while poaching is fishing in prohibited areas. Both are subsidizing, according to fisheries officials. To keep the long indented coastline under the watchful eye of the bureau 55 armed boats with 38 small tugs are commissioned to act as guards and peace officers.

Headquarters will be maintained at Kodiak, Cook Inlet, Chignik, Afognak and Ketchikan.

THE ANNUAL CONVENTION M. E. CHURCHSunday School Workers Meet in This City, Sessions Were Well Attended.

The sixtieth annual convention of the Pickaway County Council of Religious Education, convened at the Methodist Episcopal church Thursday morning. E. S. Neuding, president of the association, presided and devotional services was conducted by Rev. L. W. Green.

Following the address of the president, a report was made by George P. Hunsicker, secretary who recommended that two days be emphasized by the churches and schools of the county, "Go-to-Church" and "Sunday School Day." The first named falls on the first Sunday in May and the second Rally Day about October first. On these two days an extra effort should be made to build up the attendance of schools and church services.

The secretary also recommended that at least one half of the conventions be held in the fall months usually in September and October.

A plan should be devised for a social meeting of pastors and superintendents of Circleville and the county, the meeting to open with a luncheon followed by a short address, then a discussion of live topics. Such a meeting should be held from two to three times a year.

The report of the treasurer, George F. Grand-Girard, shows that there was a balance on hand June 10, 1926, of $271.06, receipts from June 10, 1926, to June 9, 1927, $349.98 a total of $621.04 and expenditures from June 10, 1926 to June 9, 1927, $355.08, leaving a balance of $265.96.

The attendance at the morning session was very good. Messages from state speakers were given by Miss Helen Schoedinger on Children's Work; Miss Harriet Harmon on Young People's Work, and W. A. Holmes on Adult Bible Class Work, and Pastors, Superintendents and General Officers by Arthur T. Arnold.

The officers of the county association are: President, E. S. Neuding, Circleville; secretary, George P. Hunsicker, Williamsport; treasurer, G. F. Grand-Girard, Circleville; superintendent children's division, Mrs. E. A. Allen, Circleville; superintendent of Young People's division, W. A. Tedrick; superintendent adult division, Professor J. M. Gordon, Ashville; superintendent educational division, Professor M. C. Warren, Circleville; superintendent administration department, Judge E. A. Brown, Circleville.

PORTUGUESE STILL LOVE EXILED QUEENBanished 16 Years Ago, She Enjoys Lasting Honor.

Lisbon, Portugal.—Queen Amelie of Portugal, who was exiled from this country 16 years ago with the rest of the royal family, left her name associated with so many charitable institutions that she still is loved and respected in the Portuguese republic.

This princess of Orleans is very democratic. She founded many children's hospitals and homes, where she helped doctors to tend the sick.

At home she supervised the educations of the princes, Louis Philippe and Manuel.

Amelie de Braganza, exiled from her native France, lived in England until her marriage to Carlos, the crown prince of Portugal.

Prince Manuel, who became king of Portugal, owes his life to his royal mother's courage. When King Carlos and the crown prince were assassinated as the royal family drove through the streets the assailants shot at the younger prince. The queen, seeing the gun aimed at her son, rose in the carriage, and with a bouquet caused the bullet to swerve, so that it merely grazed his hand.

Since the proclamation of the republic in Portugal the exiled queen lived for many years in England with her son. But now that the French republic has annulled the ban against the former royal family of France Amelie of Orleans lives in seclusion in a small house near the palace of Versailles, where her ancestors once reigned.

"Pickup" for Collector

After reposing for many weeks in the window of a shop in Bristol, England, an old blue-and-white ginger jar, which many collectors examined and refused to buy, was finally sold by the dealer, for $3. The purchaser disposed of it to Louis Huth, at the sale of whose collection it brought $29,500. It is one of the "rarest hawthorne jars in existence."

Growing Mining Industry

The mining industry of Alaska is going ahead rapidly and will increase in leaps and bounds when the facilities for getting the mined material out of the country are increased, as they undoubtedly will be in the near future, which will result in cutting the cost of transportation. Last year the total value of the production was $18,220,692, while that of the previous year was $17,457,333.

"As the Twig Is Bent"

"The world is work crazy," asserts Roger Payne, "and addiction to work is just as bad as any other vice, such as idleness, drink or gambling." The lack of proper home influences, of course, is to blame for most of this waywardness. Most men usually attribute their downfall to the fact that at a tender and impressionable age they were led into their first work by older companions.

AMUSEMENTS

California — land of romance, the Mecca for those who would follow the setting sun—is shown in all its glory in "Arizona Bound," the first production presenting Gary Cooper, Paramount's new western star, and scheduled for showing at the Met theater on Thursday.

As the result of a definite policy adopted by officials of Famous Players-Lasky, all the Gary Cooper productions will be photographed in locations which will present the most beautiful backgrounds in the western state, and will bring additional interest to these stirring tales of the great frontier.

The Cooper, product of a Montana ranch, has been on the screen for but little more than a year, he is already recognized as a western type of particular appeal. Tall, rangy and bronzed, it is freely predicted that he will swiftly become established as one of the prime favorites among the cowboy heroes. In his first picture as a star he is revealed as an actor of unusual ability, and as a handsome, hard-riding westerner who is equally at home in a fight or a frolic.

The Cooper production will be featured by the presence of "Flash," a magnificent Arabian stallion which is said to be the most beautiful horse ever shown on the screen.

The strong supporting cast assembled for "Arizona Bound," is headed by Betty Jewel, famous as "the girl with the velvet eyes," and El Brendel, one of the screen's newest and funniest comedians. The picture was directed by John Waters, who has been in charge of the filming of many of Paramount's Zane Grey productions.

Days Becoming Longer

The oft-expressed wish of the busy man that the day were longer is being gratified, for the earth is steadily reducing its rate of rotation. It will be some time, however, before we need change our habits on this account, because the lengthening of the day is estimated to amount to one-tenth of a second in a thousand years.

Live Stock Is Improving Fast

Officials Think Tendency Shows Influence of Educational Work.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Participation of live stock owners in the systematic campaign to improve domestic animals shows several interesting trends in live stock evolution. During the seven and one-half years that the federal-state plan has been in operation the enrollment of new participants has been continuous, averaging about two hundred a month. Live stock officials of the United States Department of Agriculture consider that this tendency shows the gradual influence of educational and demonstration work.

Many Breeds Represented.

Another noticeable trend is the many breeds and classes represented. The kind of stock raised by twenty-five owners in Kentucky, who late in April officially joined the army of pure-bred sire users, illustrates the wide range of animals involved in this useful work. Among the principal breeds undergoing improvement at the hands of these progressive stock owners are Jersey, Guernsey, Holstein, Shorthorn, and Angus cattle; Chester-White and Poland-China swine; and various breeds of chickens in which Leghorns and Plymouth Rocks predominate.

Lithographed Barn Sign.

Persons co-operating with the various states and the Department of Agriculture receive a lithographed barn sign suitable for display on their premises. The sole requirement is the written agreement to use pure-bred sires for all classes of live stock kept and to follow systematic breeding methods leading to the improvement of herds and flocks. The department furnishes suitable printed matter on the principles of live stock breeding. Frequent reports show that resulting improvement of the animals raised under such a plan adds greatly to their utility and sale value.

Corn-Belt Farmers Will Keep Out Harmful Borer

Not content with keeping close tabs on the progress of the corn-borer clean-up campaign in Ohio and neighboring states, the corn-belt farmer farther west is already taking steps to keep the borer out, according to reports received by the United States Department of Agriculture.

Iowa has appropriated $200,000 and other corn-belt states have appropriated like sums for corn-borer research within recent months. Engineers are trying to develop machinery that will make it easier to grow corn in the presence of the borer. Plant breeders are hoping to develop varieties of corn that will circumvent the attacks of the borer. Realizing that a change in usual farm practice may be necessary, many midwestern farmers are now studying the best ways of making such changes. In northern Indiana, although the borer has been found only in six northeastern counties, farmers have offered to clean up their fields on the chance that their stalks might be harboring some borers. Blazing oil has been used to burn any stubble that might possibly be infested.

Summer Care of Calves Is of Much Importance

If the young calf is turned out to pasture he should be furnished shelter from the hot sun, suggests Horace Jones, instructor in dairy husbandry at the North Carolina State college. Calves that have had indoor care, when turned out without shelter, develop blisters on their backs and are easy prey for winged pests. A cheap shed of some sort furnishes excellent refuge for the young calf during the day.

If a number of calves are placed in the same pasture and are of such age that milk must be fed, it is necessary that a row of stanchions be provided in which to tie them while being fed and for a few minutes afterward. Each calf should be fed separately. Too often a number of calves are fed from a trough. The result is that the large calves gorge themselves while the weaker ones do not receive enough milk. "Bulk" feeding is a very poor practice. Calves do very well on pasture and can be cared for in this manner more economically than in any other way. Care must be taken, however, to see that they receive what additional care is necessary.

Agricultural Items

The city and suburban garden can harbor the corn borer just as the corn-field can.

Grapevines of varieties which grow vigorously usually do best when pruned and trained to the Kniffen system.

Pear growers will be interested in a new material for the control of pear psylla. It consists of a mixture in equal parts of hydrated lime and plaster of paris together with 1 per cent nicotine.

If you believe a dollar saved is a dollar earned, try borrowing money at the bank at the rate of 6 per cent a year so you can take advantage of the 10 per cent discount for cash within ten days.

U. S. Land, Just "Found," Slated for Park Site

Washington.—Land that the federal government has possessed for 80 years in the mountains of northern Alabama has just been "discovered" by search in the records of the federal land office.

The surveyor who mapped the territory in 1847 for allocation to settlers seems to have been daunted when he came to the brink of May's gulf, a beautiful gorge ten miles long and a quarter to a half-mile wide. Or perhaps he concluded that no one ever would want it. Anyway, he mapped only to the brink on either side, drew two lines marking the bluffs and labeled them "perpendicular bluffs 300 to 500 feet high," and let it go at that.

The state legislature is expected to buy the territory for a park in accordance with a federal law passed last year permitting transfer of such tracts to the states.

Wedding Scene Ready, Bridegroom Skips Out

Liberty, Mo.—Rev. H. H. Luetzow of the Methodist church in Liberty was astonished when a prospective bridegroom left the minister's home on a pretext of "saying a word to the taxi driver" and never returned.

The prospective bride, a thirty-five-year-old widow from Kansas City, barely had enough money to pay her fare back to Kansas City.

A man giving the name of Morris F. Long, forty years old, appeared before the county recorder with the woman and obtained a license. The taxi driver said the man told him he had changed his mind about getting married.

He drew a revolver and held it against the driver's head, saying:

The man left the taxicab in Kansas City.

Air Mail Service

Shows Big Increase

Washington.—Use of the air mail has shown marked increase since the new 10 cents per half ounce rate went into effect and April business established a record. Second Assistant Postmaster General W. Irving Glover announced.

Approximately 1,500,000 letters were carried over the 14 coastair air mail routes during April and contractors were paid $133,129 for their services. Air mails over the transcontinental and New York-Chicago overnight routes have shown a corresponding increase because of the new rate.

LISTS 862 KINDS OF FOREST TREES

Forest Service Makes Check of Species.

Washington.—There are 862 species of forest trees in this country, according to the revised "Check List of the Forest Trees of the United States," just issued by the forest service, United States Department of Agriculture. If the different varieties and hybrids were added the total of the different forms of forest trees would reach 1,177.

Of all the trees that make up our forests, 182 species are of special interest because of the commercially useful timber of other products they supply, the publication points out. However, it is indicated that the number of important species cannot remain constant, changing from time to time with the development of commercial needs.

The previous check list of trees, compiled 23 years ago, listed but 604 different trees. The enormous increase in the number of trees that have become known since that time is due to the addition of newly discovered trees and the separation of tree species that previously were not distinguished from each other. In the new edition each of the different trees is designated by its proper technical name and by the common name adopted by the forest service.

It has long been the endeavor of the forest service to standardize the common names of trees, so that not only the trees as they are met with in the forests, but the lumber cut from these trees, shall be known by these names. The importance in trade relations of such standardization of common names cannot be overestimated. Failure to use standard common names for important timber trees and their woods has led to troublesome and expensive litigation.

"The one great object of all books on our trees," says the publication, "is to acquaint the public with the different trees we have and the names by which they are known. If the present confusion of common names of trees can be ended by general agreement on standard names for the different species, this object will be obtained more speedily."

To Wage Poison War on Cabbage Maggots

Corrosive Sublimate Guns
Useful for Purpose.

New tactics are to be used against cabbage maggots this year by Del-Bay Farms, of Bridgeton, N. J. Instead of using the customary method of hoeing around the young cabbage plants to remove maggot eggs, the company will poison the pest with corrosive sublimate.

With the new method, the young cabbage plants are watched after they are set in the field. When eggs of the maggot fly are found, which under ordinary conditions will be within four or six days after the setting, the Del-Bay Farms' workmen will go into action with their corrosive sublimate guns. Instructions have been issued to apply the solution on the plants for a space of about two inches above the ground so that it will run down to the roots. A second application will be made ten days later.

The Del-Bay Farms company estimates that this treatment, including materials and labor, will cost about $15 an acre for each application, which is considerably below the cost of the old method.

C. H. Nissley, extension specialist in vegetable growing for the New Jersey State College of Agriculture, asserts that corrosive sublimate has also been used for checking the ravages of cabbage maggots on cauliflower and radishes. The chemical can be obtained at any drug store. For cabbage maggot control, it is dissolved at the rate of one ounce to eight or ten gallons of water and about one-half a cupful of the solution applied to each plant.

Control Melon Aphid by Application of Nicotine

The melon aphid, which attacks watermelons, muskmelons, cucumbers and like crops, is effectively controlled by the application of nicotine either as a spray or dust, says the United States Department of Agriculture. This insect, frequently called the melon louse, is very small, varies in color from light green to dark green, and the wingless forms are louse-like in appearance.

The pest has more than 40 known natural insect enemies, which in some measure check its ravages, according to Bulletin No. 1499-F, "The Melon Aphid and Its Control." When conditions are favorable for its development, however, artificial control becomes necessary.

The winged forms of the aphid develop on other food plants and fly to the melon and cucumber vines, where they feed on the underside of the leaves, which curl, wither and die. Since the insects are capable of causing wholesale destruction on short notice, it is important that a constant lookout be kept for any sign of the pest and control measures applied promptly.

The bulletin contains a general description of the melon aphid, the nature of its attack, distribution, food plants, seasonal history, insect enemies, and methods of control. A copy may be obtained free, as long as the supply lasts, upon request to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Bichloride Is Safest for Sweet Potato Dip

Growers will do well to continue using mercuric chloride for the control of certain sweet potato diseases, in the opinion of R. F. Poole, associate plant pathologist at the New Jersey agricultural experiment station. Experiments indicate that a number of new organic mercury compounds now on the market must be used with caution. These substances control the diseases very well but also poison the roots of the plants and thereby reduce sprout development to a considerable degree.

Until this bad effect of the new compounds is overcome, growers will get better results from the old mercuric chloride or, as it is sometimes called, bichloride of mercury, dipping method. In making the solution for this, one ounce of the bichloride is used in eight gallons of water. By immersing the seed potatoes in this for ten minutes, the grower can destroy scurf, black rot, soft rot, and stem rot organisms on the surface of the potatoes.

No solution is effective, Doctor Poole adds, unless healthy seed is selected. The only function of the seed treatment is to destroy organisms resting on the potatoes before they begin to enter the skin and young sprouts. Once they have entered, no surface treatment can reach them.

Bad Odors and Flavors Found in Milk or Cream

It is well-known to everybody who has handled milk or cream, that both will take on odors of all kinds. Cream which is delivered to creameries frequently has odors and flavors ranging from gasoline, kerosene, potato, fruit, to dish-rag, cow and stable. These odors are a part of the cream. When such cream is delivered to the creamery the buttermaker cannot sift, strain, or force these odors from the cream. He may drive off some of the milder odors by pasteurizing and cover up others, for the time being, but the odors and flavors are there, and if given time will affect the butter.

SURPRISE PARTY

By the Program Committee of
the Business and Professional Women's Club.

The surprise which was supposed to be staged by the program committee of the Business and Professional Women's Club following their regular meeting at their club rooms last evening, proved to be a surprise to the members of the committee also. At the meeting in the club rooms George Griffith delighted the members present with one of his delightful chalk talks, which proved very amusing and at the same time aided them to use some of their gray matter in responding to his questions.

At the conclusion of the business meeting which followed, Mr. Griffith's talk to the utter surprise of all present. Mrs. Joseph Work invited them to her home where a birthday party had been prepared in honor of her little daughter, Julia Jane's second birthday. The guests found their places at small tables by means of place cards bearing Mother Goose rhymes and which were decorated with beautiful roses, where delicious refreshments were served. Julia Jane proved a very delightful hostess and exhibited to the members of the club her bank book which had been opened by the club for her shortly after her arrival. She was the first baby born to a member of the club after its origination.

The affair coming as such a surprise and being delightfully carried out was thoroughly enjoyed. Julia Jane was the recipient of felicitations from all present.

New Seed May Make Linen Cheap as Cotton

Belfast, Ireland.—Superflax seed which, it is said, may make linen as cheap as cotton goods is nearing perfection in experiments conducted by the Ulster Linen Research association, co-operating with the British and Ulster governments.

The new seed now produces tow double the length of ordinary flax. The tow also is without the troublesome sticky substances which necessitate the present expensive hand process in preparing the raw material for market. It can easily be worked by machinery, it is said, thus eliminating the great numbers of hand workers now engaged.

Two thousand acres in Ulster and a tract in Somerset, England, will be planted to the new seed this year, and preparations are under way to introduce it in the Dakotas. Negotiations have been going on for some time with agricultural officials of Oregon. They are said to be much interested and to have promised to give the seed a thorough test.

One Guess as to What Animal He Resembled

The clean-up of the New York stage led Newton Booth Tarkington to say at an Indianapolis reception:
"A clean-up was needed. For money—don't be deceived about high-art talk—for money and money alone our stage had become about the ugliest thing that ever happened."
"Yes, it was so ugly that it reminds me of a story."
"The story is about a very ugly man who called one afternoon on a fascinating young widow. As he sat with the widow very happily over a cupful of tea and a cigarette her little daughter came in from school."
"The child stared at the man for a moment in silence. Then she burst out in wide-eyed indignation:

Milady's Apparel Takes Many Bows

Numbers of Ornamental Themes Are Offered for Spring and Summer.

Perhaps never before in the history of fashion have details taken on so significant a complexion as this season. With the straight line silhouette once more firmly established in the good graces of the mode, with the hemline no longer a matter for criticism or discussion, the natural corollary is that smartness for spring and summer is to be governed largely by discriminating emphasis on the proper details. So many of these ornamental themes have been offered for spring and summer, says a fashion writer in the New York Herald-Tribune, that it is easy to fall into the mistake of selecting some inconsequential embellishment which will be quite without fashion importance.

There is one outstanding detail this season upon which you can stake your all with a free conscience—and that is the bow. Indeed, it might not be stretching a point to deem the bow as the most significant theme that 1927 has thus far offered. The bow is yet too young in the devious ways of the mode to have joined any clique. It will be found at the waistline and it will be found as well at the neckline or just beneath the shoulders. Premet, for example, finishes off many round and square necklines by the bow, while other distinguished couturiers favor different determinants of the silhouette. Anywhere at all will meet the requirements of fashion, with the shoulders thus far the favored haven. Nor are there any strictures as to length or width on any of the bows. Some are broad and flowing, others quite narrow and demurely petite. For the moment the bow itself is the thing—its form is secondary.

The 1927 Neckline.
Ranging well up among the major incidentals of the new mode are the Vionnet neckline and the suddenly revived nose veil. It will be recalled that last year Madeleine Vionnet attracted sharp interest among the fashionables by the overnight famous Vionnet sleeve. At this writing there is definite prospect that her 1927 neckline will attract just as favorable notice. This particular line has been called square, but it is not square in the ordinary sense of the word—it might better be described as straight. It reaches from shoulder to shoulder, describing a straight line between them. Especially in the blouses that go with the new tailleurs has this line been effectively used.

As for the half-length veil, it has been crescendoing its way through the mode since an inconspicuous introduction along the Riviera. How long its tenure will be is not important. For this season it is favorably sanctioned by Paris, and inasmuch as it adds a really unique note to current styles our counsel is that you adopt it, occasionally at least. Strictly speaking, it is not in the tempo of the current mode.

On the subject of sleeves much has been said this spring. The curious conflict between the daytime and evening modes whereby the latter sailed into uncharted channels by adopting long, full sleeves for the robe du soir, while the former reverted to post-war flapperism by sponsoring daytime frocks with no sleeves at all, has attracted wide comment. We have not hesitated definitely to condemn the sleeveless street frock. Despite which we cheerfully commend the long-sleeved evening dress to your particular attention. Its virtues are these—it is undeniably effective, it is decidedly different and, in these days of generous revelations, it is surely unique. Exploit it these warmer evenings and your place will be unquestioned in the model ranks.

Must Recognize Youth.
College professors who once preached loudest against the youth movement are now engaged in adjusting themselves to it—fashion critics who derided contemporary fashions as being a flare-back to barbarism have suddenly stopped baying the moon to

Jersey Jumper With Black and White Polka-dot Skirt.

Join the procession. And save only those gentle souls who wear old lace and breathe in an atmosphere of lavender, the mesdames of the mode have joined the expressionistic movement in clothes.

And there you have a really curious situation. Observe some smart society matron of today arrayed in perhaps Lanvin's zouave frock. Then turn to a prewar newspaper file, or family album, and look at a photograph of the same lady gayly decked in the majestic garb of the earlier years of this century. It cannot be that this ever so feminine lady of 1912 has completely metamorphosed into the straight, semi-masculine type of today. It must be that sometimes there comes a surging desire to revert to the days before realism had routed romance. The ingrained manners and breeding of a score and more years cannot be cast off in five or six. And yet, to every outward viewpoint, that has happened. The knee-revealing hemline and a conforming silhouette which looks as though it were individually draped have been adopted unanimously by the same ladies who not so long ago wore the most demure of frills and furbelows and gloried in them.

Follow the Crowds.
They have been adopted here because Fashion has very little to do with personal preferences. As the crowds go you will go, and while it is courageous and valiant enough to march in the opposite direction, you can't get far unless you're very caloused to ridicule. From the viewpoint of the mode, upstream is the diametrically wrong course.

If you would be chic this spring and summer, and for at least several seasons after that, it is your inescapable duty to conform to the modal tenets of the moment. No matter what secret longings you may have for the stately ankle-length skirt, it behooves you to terminate the hemline no lower than a few inches below the knees.

Often enough fashion writers have vociferously preached the doctrine of greater femininity in dress, more mature effects and what not, displaying at the same time some sketches of the mode from Paris which were as young and masculine as you could imagine. If you are one of those whose heart is still with the Victorian regime, there is your cue. Preach gentler dress as loud and long as you will, decry some of the very vulnerable themes of modernistic styles to all the corners of the earth. In that way you may stir up some excellent propaganda which will later bear fruit. Exploit at every opportunity the most gentle versions of this seldom feminine mode. But remember that modernism in dress is still the only key to chic, and in general wear without compromise or exception the expressionistic garb of the moment. You may preach, in a word, a doctrine you do not dare to practice. Unless, of course, yours is the unregardful courage of the dowagers from Back Bay.

DR. FRANK LOOMIS

On Witness Stand in His Trial For Murdering His Wife.

Detroit, June 7.—(UP.)—For four hours today, Dr. Frank M. Loomis, accused of beating his wife to death, calmly sat on the witness stand and answered questions fired at him by Prosecutor Robert M. Toms.

The courtroom, where the doctor is being tried on a first degree murder charge, was packed with interested spectators who sat almost breathless while the prosecutor and stoical physician duelled back and forth.

Yesterday, under direct questioning of his attorney, Louis J. Colombo, the doctor described circumstances under which he returned home to find his wife's body, and the manner in which police obtained statements from him.

The physician showed the first sign of a possible breakdown when he realistically re-enacted his entry into the sunroom of his home and picked up the bloody body. He was dressed in the blood-stained clothes and several times pushed back tears which welled into his eyes.

Today he termed action of officers "cruel" in that they refused to permit him to see friends, relatives or an attorney from Tuesday evening, when the murder occurred, until Thursday afternoon.

Dr. Loomis declared that when released on Saturday, following the murder on a writ of habeas corpus, he went home and took his children for an automobile ride.

Toms asked Dr. Loomis if he had ever, during the three days' questioning by police, made a "misstatement."

"Not that I know of," Loomis answered straightforwardly.

Another worth-while fetish of the current mode is the one-side effect, which emphasizes a noticeable detail at one side only. Thus Vionnet shows numerous frocks and coats in surplice fashion with a decided flare on either the right or left side. Drecoll includes a number of smart models which are draped at only a single side, as well as some others which feature yokes and panels, these latter also confined to one side. In fact, throughout the various summer collections there is a significant emphasis of this theme, one of whose outstanding merits is its effective breaking up of the boyish straight line. Of the Big-House Family

By CLARISSA MACKIE

(Copyright.)

WHEN the Allenbys lost all their money and were obliged to leave the Big House, as it was locally called, they were able to occupy a small cottage not far away. When they were comfortably settled there, Ann and her mother—for the father had died before his ill-judged investments had proved to be utterly worthless—were cozy and comfortable enough, though they missed the largeness and space that they had always been accustomed to. The cottage garden was a thing of wonder, for dozens of roots were brought from Big House, and their old gardener, Jacob, had made them a wonderful vegetable garden that was surrounded with more flowers!

"Mother, darling, I know we lack the luxury and the motors of Big House," said Ann, one lovely June day, "but aren't you a little bit happy?"

Mrs. Allenby smiled contentedly at her charming daughter. "I am happier, dear, than I have been since I was first married," she admitted. "Your father and I began our married life in this wee house."

"Mother! And you never told me!" exclaimed Ann.

"I wanted you to teach yourself to like the change, without favorable prejudice. You know, of course," said Mrs. Allenby, "that Big House has been sold—a small family, I hear, mother and son, they say. He's an electrical engineer. When they are thoroughly settled, I shall, of course call."

Half an hour later, the gate opened and a young man appeared carrying a shining milk pail. Ann liked him at once, because he was big and so clean and thoroughly good looking.

"I came to beg a pail of your spring water, Mrs. Allenby," he said. "We have just arrived at Big House and something has happened to the spring water pump there—at least it is out of commission."

"Why, of course," said hospitable Mrs. Allenby. "My daughter will direct you," and she resumed her novel, while Ann with a little nod of assent put aside her sewing and joined him on the red brick path.

"Big House is a fine old mansion," observed the young man as they walked along, "but I do miss a few things—such as this old brick path for instance."

"I love them, too," said Ann. "I believe mother forgot to introduce us I am Ann Allenby."

"And I am Ronald Smith," he laughed. "One of the great Smith clan!" They laughed together as they reached the spring house.

"Then, you are a member of Big House family," offered Ann.

He nodded carelessly. "There is only mother and I—the rest of the family have all married and gone off—even father has taken a trip to South America!"

Ann made some happy response, and went back to the veranda. She went on sewing daintily. Then Mrs. Allenby said abruptly:

"A rather nice looking man—I suppose he is the butler or chauffeur."

Ann gasped, and then a dimple came into her cheek; what a funny joke on mother! she thought.

"Have you ever seen any of the Smiths, mother—of course, I mean the new family next door?"

"No," said Mrs. Allenby, resuming her book.

Every day Ronald Smith appeared with his pail for water. One morning he brought a great armful of yellow roses, that had been Mrs. Allenby's pride and joy at Big House. "Mother sent these to Mrs. Allenby," he said simply, and went on around by the brick walk.

"Mother?" exclaimed Mrs. Allenby. "Never let him know that I bought him the butler!"

"Or the chauffeur!" laughed Ann, and then she told her mother what she had learned that first day.

"Then, he must be the electrical engineer," decided Mrs. Allenby. "I wonder," she mused, "why he did not repair their pump after that first day."

"I wonder!" echoed Ann, but there was a pink flush in her cheeks, and a tender look in her eyes, for her meetings with young Smith, though brief and full of interest. Mrs. Allenby put aside her plan of summer idleness, and sending for the village taxicab she paid a state call upon Mrs. Smith, who turned out to be so delightful a woman of her own social rank, with so many congenial acquaintances who were also friends of Mrs. Allenby's, that a very warm friendship grew rapidly between them.

"Ronnie is just spending the summer with me," explained Mrs. Smith on the way.

The two ladies exchanged a smile. For Ronald Smith and Ann had fallen desperately in love with each other and it was not long before they became engaged.

Then Ronald announced his desire to live with Mrs. Allenby at White Cottage. "Of course, you can have a housemaid—and more, if you wish," he told Ann and her mother one day "but for my part, I can be both butler and chauffeur, if necessary!"

M. H. Broughton, Railroad Man Considered as Successor to F. B. Mauller.

Governor Donahey has been presented with a new name for appointment as a member of the Public Utilities commission, to succeed Frank B. Mauller, the only Republican member on the commission, whom the governor personally is antagonistic to and will remove the moment he finds he can do so under the law. Mauller who was appointed by Governor Harry L. Davis, has hung on during the almost three terms of Governor Donahey and refuses to leave the place until the supreme court says he is obliged to. The fight between the governor and Mauller is as interesting a phase of public life, as anything Columbus affords as the present.

Going on the assumption that Mauller will finally have to go the various railroad organizations of the state have united on the appointment of M. H. Broughton, of Columbus, trainmaster on the B. & O. railroad, between Columbus and Newark and a railroad man of more than 30 years experience. Moreover he is a Republican and meets the political exigencies of the case, since the successor to Mauller must belong to that party under the law.

A number of delegations, representing various railroad organizations have seen the governor personally to ask the appointment of Mr. Broughton and his name has been urged by John C. Sullivan, a former member, under appointment of Governor Harmon, of the state board of public service, which had to do with utilities matters and before that a prominent railroad official for many years.

It is made plain to the governor that since the utilities commission deals to a very large extent with questions which affect questions of transportation and transportation companies, one member of the organization should be a practical railroad man.

There is not a city in the state where some members of a railroad brotherhood have not joined in asking the appointment of Mr. Broughton.

Substitute for Sun

Dwellers in smoke-shrouded cities and such as sleep by day and work by night can make up what they suffer from lack of sufficient sunshine by the use of electric sun baths, according to an eminent British health authority. Prolonged periods of wet weather tend noticeably to increase the spread of sickness in large cities, and pulmonary diseases are prevalent where sunlight is lacking, as are many ailments peculiar to children. Electric sun baths, the British physician referred to declares, offer a satisfactory substitute for nature's own.

EX-CHIEF OF POLICE LENGEL IN JAIL

CHARGED WITH THE MURDER OF CANTON NEWSPAPER EDITOR

Don Mellett; July 16, 1926—Lengel is the Fifth Person Accused For the Murder. He Is Accused of Having Laid the Plot—Indictment Is Returned On Basis of Story Told By Detective Streitenberger, Now Serving Life In the Pen.

Seranus A. Lengel, 65 years old, deposed Canton police chief, is in Stark county jail at Canton, facing a charge of first degree murder in connection with the slaying of Don R. Mellett, Canton publisher, following return of an indictment against him by a special grand jury Wednesday.

Lengel, indicted as a result of a confession by Floyd E. Streitenberger former detective and close police department associate of Lengel, is charged with having been one of the chief instigators of the plot against Mellett.

In his confession Streitenberger charged that he had acted as a go-between for Lengel and Louis Mazer, also charged with first degree murder, when the plot against the young editor was hatched and carried out.

Lengel, according to Streitenberger's story, was eager to "get even" with Mellett for editorial attacks made against him and efforts to have him ousted as police chief when he had only one more year to serve before he was eligible for pension.

Streitenberger added that Lengel feared other knowledge Mellett had gained a short time before he was slain might cost him his job and lead to prosecution on charges of malfeasance of office if Mellett proved allegations of protection by Lengel and other police department officials of certain vice interests.

Streitenberger also declared Lengel was a member of the group which framed the famous "sick dog" alibi for Streitenberger and Mazer following the murder. The "alibi" sought to place Mazer at Streitenberger's home caring for the former detective's "sick" dog at the time of the crime was committed.

Lengel, Streitenberger charged, laid the plans for the plot against Mellett and conveyed them to Mazer thru Streitenberger, Mazer, the confessor said, hired Patrick Eugene McDermott and another gunman, as yet unnamed, offered by Ben Rudner to "do the job."

Lengel's dismissal from office was upheld by a civil service commission last August after a second hearing on charges of incompetency and inefficiency. He also was charged specifically with having "bungled" the Mellett murder inquiry.

The former chief first was dismissed from office in the spring of 1926, but was reinstated by a civil service commission composed of Price Janson, John W. Burris and James A. Allardice. Charges of inefficiency and neglect of duty were brought against Janson and Burris, whose votes reinstated Lengel, and they were discharged from the commission a week before the editor was shot down last July 16.

A new commission, with Allardice as its chairman, then upheld Lengel's second dismissal.

The grand jury, called specially May 23, worked on the indictment for four days. Streitenberger appeared before the panel May 23, immediately following his conviction and sentence to life imprisonment, when he signed his confession, implicating Lengel.

was recessed until last Monday. Streitenberger repeated his story along with the testimony of other witnesses.

Included among them were Mrs. Streitenberger, Mazer, former County School Superintendent A. J. Smith former Patrolman Homer Moore and William Brumme, Massillon salesman, who testified during the Rudner trial that he was introduced to Lengel in Rudner's hardware store at Massillon several days before Mellett was assassinated. Mazer was called by the grand jury's request.

Patrick Eugene McDermott, Nanty Glo, Pennsylvania, "hard guy" one of the gunmen, who shot Mellett; Ben Rudner, Massillon hardware merchant and son of a millionaire Canton junk dealer, who was the "pay-off man," and Floyd E. Streitenberger, ousted city detective and henchman, of Lengel, are serving life sentences in Ohio penitentiary, Streitenberger and McDermott without hope of pardon.

Louis Mazer, Canton jungle prince is in Stark county jail awaiting the outcome of the case against Lengel. Mazer has been promised immunity if it is found he told "the truth" in his confession which led to Streitenberger's conviction.

TWIN BANDITS CAPTURED AT STEUBENVILLE

Accused are Wanted in Oregon For Killing Three Men in a Train Holdup.

Ray and Roy D'Antremont, twin brothers, on whose heads nearly $20,000 in rewards have been posted by Uncle Sam, were caught Wednesday in Steubenville. They are wanted in Oregon for the killing of a postal clerk and three trainmen in a passenger train holdup at Siskiyou, Oregon, about four years ago. Assistant U. S. District Attorney W. B. Bartels said the two captured have been identified as the bandits.

Mr. Bartels received word about a month ago that the two brothers were believed to be hiding at Steubenville. The agent of the bureau of investigation who made the arrest Wednesday works out of the Columbus office. Bartels said, but he declined to make public his name.

Hugh D'Autremont, a third brother was captured recently in the Philippine Islands.

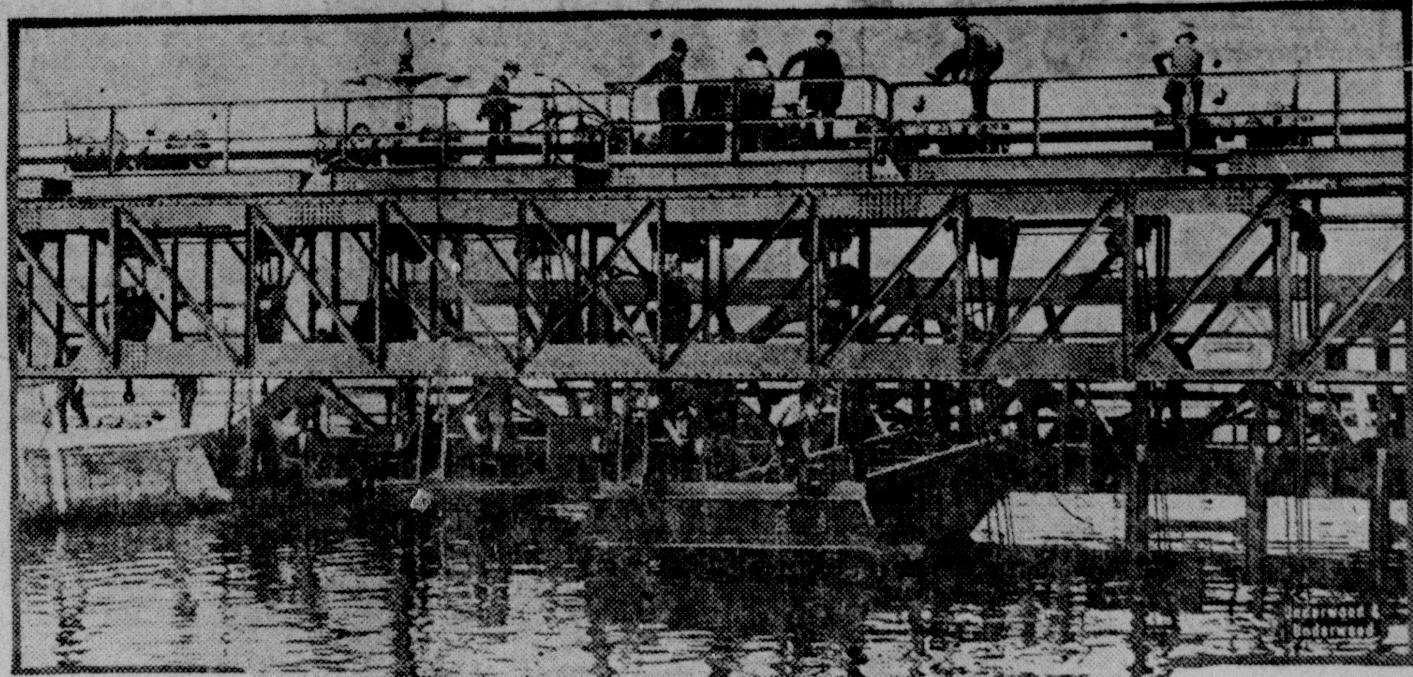

The youths said they had been working in the Wheeling Steel Corporation mill in Steubenville since January.

Capture of Roy took place when he went to work. Then the officers returned to a rooming house in the foreign section where the brothers had been living. One of the detectives knocked at the door and when Ray appeared told him his brother had been injured at the mill.

Ray rushed out to an automobile which he had been told was waiting to take him to the hospital and was covered by guns of the waiting officers. Two guns were found in the house belonging to the brothers.

The D'Autremonts will be held at Steubenville until Friday when they will be arraigned or removed to Columbus.

MADE SHORTER MONEY WILL LAST LONGER

New Bills Will be Harder to Counterfeit--One Year is Required For Making.

Paper money is to be made shorter but will be expected to last longer. This information is contained in a statement given out in Columbus by the Ohio Industrial Lenders' association, an organization of small loan companies, and is based on information from the treasury department at Washington.

The change will affect all United States currency except national bank notes, and is to be made in the interest of convenience and economy.

It is proposed to reduce the size of the bills from 7 7-16 by 3 1-8 inches to 6 1-8 by 2 5-8 inches and it is expected that the change will result in a saving of one-third in the cost of producing the bills. The smaller size will require the folding of the bills but once when placing them in a pocketbook, and this, it is believed will tend to promote the life of the money, as the fewer the creases the less wear on the fibre of the currency. The new bills also will tend to make counterfeiting more difficult officials believe. The new size is the same as that now used in Philippine currency.

It will take a year to manufacture and age the paper required for the new bills and in that time the new plates will be ready. It is proposed to issue bills in the larger denominations first.

JUDGE SOWERS PASSED AWAY IN PORTSMOUTH

End Came After Three Days' Illness--Was Guest of His Friend Harry Taylor.

Judge Daniel H. Sowers one of the most popular and highly respected citizens of Columbus, died in Schirman hospital, Portsmouth, Wednesday afternoon, June 8.

While visiting with Mrs. Sowers at the home of Harry E. Taylor Judge Sowers was stricken with bronchial pneumonia on Sunday and passed away three days later.

Judge Sowers was born in Champaign county sixty years ago and he graduated from Ohio Wesleyan university in 1889. In 1891, he was admitted to the practice of law and became a member of the firm of Huggins & Sowers.

He was serving his second term as common pleas judge of Franklin county and was president of the Ohio Association of Common Pleas Judges.

Judge Sowers was active in church work and also took a keen interest in Masonic work and had been elected to receive the Thirty-third degree in Boston next September.

Besides his wife, he is survived by one son, one brother and one sister.

The funeral services will be held from St. Paul's Episcopal church Friday afternoon at two o'clock.

Copies Famed StatueEntirely of Matches

Leipzig, Germany.—A monument of industry and patience has been created by Gerhard Mittelstadt, an artisan of Frieberg, Saxony.

It is a miniature reproduction of the famous granite memorial of the battle of Leipzig (1813), fashioned entirely out of burnt matches, 28,732 having been used.

The original monument, a massive pile of stone, looms to a height of nearly 300 feet above the plain in the outskirts of Leipzig, where Napoleon was defeated and the fate of his empire sealed. It was erected in 1913 to commemorate the hundredth anniversary of the battle, which freed Germany from Napoleon's grip, and is called the "Voelkerschlachtdenkmal."

The miniature reproduction is about seventeen and one-half inches high. The artisan has not explained where he got all the burnt matches.

Paola, Kan.—On top of one of the shallowest oil fields in the world, the town of Paola is filled with people who either own an oil or gas well or an interest in one. Paola has a population of 3,500 and there are more than 1,200 producing oil wells within the confines of Miami county, of which Paola is the county seat.

The oil underlies the surface in shallow streams and pools. Some of the pools supply oil for 20 years or so and then die down. A pool struck recently in the northwestern part of the county has renewed interest and activity.

Well Costs $1,000.

Oil is found in the field at a depth of about 450 feet. A well costs a little less than $1,000 and if it is a good one the owner stands a chance of being comfortably wealthy. Consequently nearly every adult in town is "taking a chance."

Maps of the field are displayed in hotels, grocery stores, drug stores and dry goods stores and every operator carries his own specially marked map, by which he will show that the development is directly in line with his lease.

Excitement is at a high pitch. Since 1875 these flurries have been coming and going in the town, but none seems to have lost enthusiasm. Employees of the post office formed the Post Office Oil company and drilled a well, the men at the drug store drilled another and the men at the Kandy Kitchen still another. Some hit and some got dry holes.

The town is full of typical stories. Enthusiasts cite the farmer who lived frugally on a small tract for years, barely existing. Then the oil came in and from six small wells he now gets about $1,000 a month. Others cite the case of Herman Miller, a junk dealer, who refused $1,000 for a one-eighth share in a well one day, only to find it was a dry hole the next.

The Miami county pool has been giving up oil for more than 40 years.

A. W. Christie put down the wildcat that opened up the latest pool. He sunk the first well on a location arrived at by the motions of a curved stick. Some believe explicitly in the powers of the stick and others openly deride it in favor of geology.

Good Well in Back Yard.

One of the best known wells is that of W. H. Morehouse, in a back yard in Paola. It came in 12 years ago, flowing 150 barrels a day. It is 450 feet deep and cost about $750 to drill. It still is flowing three barrels a day. When oil was selling at $3.50 a barrel the well was averaging about 15 barrels a day. Several of these back yard oil wells have been in existence from 5 to 12 years.

Back-yard gas wells also are common. Farmers light and heat their homes, barns and yards with the gas. David McCullough even lighted up the highway in front of his farm with gas from his well. On another farm a croquet ground was brightly lighted.

Two deep wells are being sunk in the field and although the shallow pool men scoff at the possibility of their bringing in oil, they have ardent backers.

Alaska Salmon Yield Brings $610,750,038

Washington.—From the island-dotted waterways of Alaska's thousands of miles of coast has come a wealth more precious, more vital than gold. It is the wealth of the sea itself—the teeming millions of salmon that have been taken from the bosom of the North Pacific and placed on the world's table.

Since Alaska was purchased from Russia, 60 years ago, salmon has led the list of exports from the territory, with $610,750,038 to its credit—a figure which multiplies nearly eighty-five fold the price Uncle Sam paid for the territory.

Despite the mineral wealth of the territory, the salmon exports lead those of gold by $250,000,000.

Thousands of men, many of them native Alaskan Indians, are engaged in salmon fishing or canning and subsidiary industries. The number during 1925 was estimated at more than 25,000. The investment at that time was set at $55,400,000.

Bureau of Fisheries' Navy Gets Ready for Action

Ketchikan, Alaska.—Fish pirates and salmon poachers along the Alaskan coast, the region whence comes many millions of dollars worth of canned fish each year, will confront a serious handicap when the bureau of fisheries' navy, a fleet of 55 armed vessels, gets on the patrol line.

Pirating is trap and scow robbery, while poaching is fishing in prohibited areas. Both are subsidizing, according to fisheries officials. To keep the long indented coastline under the watchful eye of the bureau 55 armed boats with 38 small tugs are commissioned to act as guards and peace officers.

Headquarters will be maintained at Kodiak, Cook Inlet, Chignik, Afognak and Ketchikan.

THE ANNUAL CONVENTION M. E. CHURCHSunday School Workers Meet in This City, Sessions Were Well Attended.

The sixtieth annual convention of the Pickaway County Council of Religious Education, convened at the Methodist Episcopal church Thursday morning. E. S. Neuding, president of the association, presided and devotional services was conducted by Rev. L. W. Green.

Following the address of the president, a report was made by George P. Hunsicker, secretary who recommended that two days be emphasized by the churches and schools of the county, "Go-to-Church" and "Sunday School Day." The first named falls on the first Sunday in May and the second Rally Day about October first. On these two days an extra effort should be made to build up the attendance of schools and church services.

The secretary also recommended that at least one half of the conventions be held in the fall months usually in September and October.

A plan should be devised for a social meeting of pastors and superintendents of Circleville and the county, the meeting to open with a luncheon followed by a short address, then a discussion of live topics. Such a meeting should be held from two to three times a year.

The report of the treasurer, George F. Grand-Girard, shows that there was a balance on hand June 10, 1926, of $271.06, receipts from June 10, 1926, to June 9, 1927, $349.98 a total of $621.04 and expenditures from June 10, 1926 to June 9, 1927, $355.08, leaving a balance of $265.96.

The attendance at the morning session was very good. Messages from state speakers were given by Miss Helen Schoedinger on Children's Work; Miss Harriet Harmon on Young People's Work, and W. A. Holmes on Adult Bible Class Work, and Pastors, Superintendents and General Officers by Arthur T. Arnold.

The officers of the county association are: President, E. S. Neuding, Circleville; secretary, George P. Hunsicker, Williamsport; treasurer, G. F. Grand-Girard, Circleville; superintendent children's division, Mrs. E. A. Allen, Circleville; superintendent of Young People's division, W. A. Tedrick; superintendent adult division, Professor J. M. Gordon, Ashville; superintendent educational division, Professor M. C. Warren, Circleville; superintendent administration department, Judge E. A. Brown, Circleville.

PORTUGUESE STILL LOVE EXILED QUEENBanished 16 Years Ago, She Enjoys Lasting Honor.

Lisbon, Portugal.—Queen Amelie of Portugal, who was exiled from this country 16 years ago with the rest of the royal family, left her name associated with so many charitable institutions that she still is loved and respected in the Portuguese republic.

This princess of Orleans is very democratic. She founded many children's hospitals and homes, where she helped doctors to tend the sick.

At home she supervised the education of the princes, Louis Philippe and Manuel.

Amelie de Braganza, exiled from her native France, lived in England until her marriage to Carlos, the crown prince of Portugal.

Prince Manuel, who became king of Portugal, owes his life to his royal mother's courage. When King Carlos and the crown prince were assassinated as the royal family drove through the streets the assailants shot at the younger prince. The queen, seeing the gun aimed at her son, rose in the carriage, and with a bouquet caused the bullet to swerve, so that it merely grazed his hand.

Since the proclamation of the republic in Portugal the exiled queen lived for many years in England with her son. But now that the French republic has annulled the ban against the former royal family of France Amelie of Orleans lives in seclusion in a small house near the palace of Versailles, where her ancestors once reigned.

"Pickup" for Collector

After reposing for many weeks in the window of a shop in Bristol, England, an old blue-and-white ginger jar, which many collectors examined and refused to buy, was finally sold by the dealer, for $3. The purchaser disposed of it to Louis Huth, at the sale of whose collection it brought $29,500. It is one of the "rarest hawthorne jars in existence."

Growing Mining Industry

The mining industry of Alaska is going ahead rapidly and will increase in leaps and bounds when the facilities for getting the mined material out of the country are increased, as they undoubtedly will be in the near future, which will result in cutting the cost of transportation. Last year the total value of the production was $18,220,692, while that of the previous year was $17,457,333.

"As the Twig Is Bent"

"The world is work crazy," asserts Roger Payne, "and addiction to work is just as bad as any other vice, such as idleness, drink or gambling." The lack of proper home influences, of course, is to blame for most of this waywardness. Most men usually attribute their downfall to the fact that they were led into their first work by older companions.

To Wage Poison War on Cabbage Maggots

Corrosive Sublimate Guns
Useful for Purpose.

New tactics are to be used against cabbage maggots this year by Del-Bay Farms, of Bridgeton, N. J. Instead of using the customary method of hoeing around the young cabbage plants to remove maggot eggs, the company will poison the pest with corrosive sublimate.

With the new method, the young cabbage plants are watched after they are set in the field. When eggs of the maggot fly are found, which under ordinary conditions will be within four or six days after the setting, the Del-Bay Farms' workmen will go into action with their corrosive sublimate guns. Instructions have been issued to apply the solution on the plants for a space of about two inches above the ground so that it will run down to the roots. A second application will be made ten days later.

The Del-Bay Farms company estimates that this treatment, including materials and labor, will cost about $15 an acre for each application, which is considerably below the cost of the old method.

C. H. Nissley, extension specialist in vegetable growing for the New Jersey State College of Agriculture, asserts that corrosive sublimate has also been used for checking the ravages of cabbage maggots on cauliflower and radishes. The chemical can be obtained at any drug store. For cabbage maggot control, it is dissolved at the rate of one ounce to eight or ten gallons of water and about one-half a cupful of the solution applied to each plant.

Control Melon Aphid by Application of Nicotine

The melon aphid, which attacks watermelons, muskmelons, cucumbers and like crops, is effectively controlled by the application of nicotine either as a spray or dust, says the United States Department of Agriculture. This insect, frequently called the melon louse, is very small, varies in color from light green to dark green, and the wingless forms are louse-like in appearance.

The pest has more than 40 known natural insect enemies, which in some measure check its ravages, according to Bulletin No. 1499-F, "The Melon Aphid and Its Control." When conditions are favorable for its development, however, artificial control becomes necessary.

The winged forms of the aphid develop on other food plants and fly to the melon and cucumber vines, where they feed on the underside of the leaves, which curl, wither and die. Since the insects are capable of causing wholesale destruction on short notice, it is important that a constant lookout be kept for any sign of the pest and control measures applied promptly.

The bulletin contains a general description of the melon aphid, the nature of its attack, distribution, food plants, seasonal history, insect enemies, and methods of control. A copy may be obtained free, as long as the supply lasts, upon request to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

Bichloride Is Safest for Sweet Potato Dip

Growers will do well to continue using mercuric chloride for the control of certain sweet potato diseases, in the opinion of R. F. Poole, associate plant pathologist at the New Jersey agricultural experiment station. Experiments indicate that a number of new organic mercury compounds now on the market must be used with caution. These substances control the diseases very well but also poison the roots of the plants and thereby reduce sprout development to a considerable degree.

Until this bad effect of the new compounds is overcome, growers will get better results from the old mercuric chloride or, as it is sometimes called, bichloride of mercury, dipping method. In making the solution for this, one ounce of the bichloride is used in eight gallons of water. By immersing the seed potatoes in this for ten minutes, the grower can destroy scurf, black rot, soft rot, and stem rot organisms on the surface of the potatoes.

No solution is effective, Doctor Poole adds, unless healthy seed is selected. The only function of the seed treatment is to destroy organisms resting on the potatoes before they begin to enter the skin and young sprouts. Once they have entered, no surface treatment can reach them.

Bad Odors and Flavors Found in Milk or Cream

It is well-known to everybody who has handled milk or cream, that both will take on odors of all kinds. Cream which is delivered to creameries frequently has odors and flavors ranging from gasoline, kerosene, potato, fruit, to dish-rag, cowy and stable. These odors are a part of the cream. When such cream is delivered to the creamery the buttermaker cannot sift, strain, or force these odors from the cream. He may drive off some of the milder odors by pasteurizing and covering up others, for the time being, but the odors and flavors are there, and if given time will affect the butter.

SURPRISE PARTY

By the Program Committee of
the Business and Professional Women's Club.

The surprise which was supposed to be staged by the program committee of the Business and Professional Women's Club following their regular meeting at their club rooms last evening, proved to be a surprise to the members of the committee also. At the meeting in the club rooms George Griffith delighted the members present with one of his delightful chalk talks, which proved very amusing and at the same time aided them to use some of their gray matter in responding to his questions.

At the conclusion of the business meeting which followed, Mr. Griffith's talk to the utter surprise of all present. Mrs. Joseph Work invited them to her home where a birthday party had been prepared in honor of her little daughter, Julia Jane's second birthday. The guests found their places at small tables by means of place cards bearing Mother Goose rhymes and which were decorated with beautiful roses, where delicious refreshments were served. Julia Jane proved a very delightful hostess and exhibited to the members of the club her bank book which had been opened by the club for her shortly after her arrival. She was the first baby born to a member of the club after its origination.

The affair coming as such a surprise and being delightfully carried out was thoroughly enjoyed. Julia Jane was the recipient of felicitations from all present.

New Seed May Make Linen Cheap as Cotton

Belfast, Ireland.—Superflax seed which, it is said, may make linen as cheap as cotton goods is nearing perfection in experiments conducted by the Ulster Linen Research association, co-operating with the British and Ulster governments.

The new seed now produces tow double the length of ordinary flax. The tow also is without the troublesome sticky substances which necessitate the present expensive hand process in preparing the raw material for market. It can easily be worked by machinery, it is said, thus eliminating the great numbers of hand workers now engaged.

Two thousand acres in Ulster and a tract in Somerset, England, will be planted to the new seed this year, and preparations are under way to introduce it in the Dakotas. Negotiations have been going on for some time with agricultural officials of Oregon. They are said to be much interested and to have promised to give the seed a thorough test.

One Guess as to What Animal He Resembled
The clean-up of the New York stage led Newton Booth Tarkington to say at an Indianapolis reception:
"A clean-up was needed. For money—don't be deceived about high-art talk—for money and money alone our stage had become about the ugliest thing that ever happened."
"Yes, it was so ugly that it reminds me of a story."
"The story is about a very ugly man who called one afternoon on a fascinating young widow. As he sat with the widow very happily over a cupful of tea and a cigarette her little daughter came in from school."
"The child stared at the man for a moment in silence. Then she burst out in wide-eyed indignation:
"Hiss for shame! I seen you at the zoo yesterday without your clothes on!"

Milady's Apparel Takes Many Bows
Numbers of Ornamental Themes Are Offered for Spring and Summer.

Perhaps never before in the history of fashion have details taken on so significant a complexion as this season. With the straight line silhouette once more firmly established in the good graces of the mode, with the hemline no longer a matter for criticism or discussion, the natural corollary is that smartness for spring and summer is to be governed, largely by discriminating emphasis on the proper details. So many of these ornamental themes have been offered for spring and summer, says a fashion writer in the New York Herald-Tribune, that it is easy to fall into the mistake of selecting some inconsequential embellishment which will be quite without fashion importance.

There is one outstanding detail this season upon which you can stake your all with a free conscience—and that is the bow. Indeed, it might not be stretching a point to deem the bow as the most significant theme that 1927 has thus far offered. The bow is yet too young in the devious ways of the mode to have joined any clique. It will be found at the waistline and it will be found as well at the neckline or just beneath the shoulders. Premet, for example, finishes off many round and square necklines by the bow, while other distinguished couturiers favor different determinants of the silhouette. Anywhere at all will meet the requirements of fashion, with the shoulders thus far the favored haven. Nor are there any strictures as to length or width on any of the bows. Some are broad and flowing, others quite narrow and demurely petite. For the moment the bow itself is the thing—its form is secondary.

The 1927 Neckline.
Ranging well up among the major incidentals of the new mode are the Vionnet neckline and the suddenly revived nose veil. It will be recalled that last year Madeleine Vionnet attracted sharp interest among the fashionables by the overnightly famous Vionnet sleeve. At this writing there is definite prospect that her 1927 neckline will attract just as favorable notice. This particular line has been called square, but it is not square in the ordinary sense of the word—it might better be described as straight. It reaches from shoulder to shoulder, describing a straight line between them. Especially in the blouses that go with the new tailors has this line been effectively used.

As for the half-length veil, it has been crendensing its way through the mode since an inconspicuous introduction along the Riviera. How long its tenure will be is not important. For this season it is favorably sanctioned by Paris, and inasmuch as it adds a really unique note to current styles our counsel is that you adopt it, occasionally at least. Strictly speaking, it is not in the tempo of the current mode.

one of the smartest if it becomes an integral theme in your new wardrobe. On the subject of sleeves much has been said this spring. The curious conflict between the daytime and evening modes whereby the latter sailed into uncharted channels by adopting long, full sleeves for the robe du soir, while the former reverted to post-war flapperism by sponsoring daytime frocks with no sleeves at all, has attracted wide comment. We have not hesitated definitely to condemn the sleeveless street frock. Despite which we cheerfully commend the long-sleeved evening dress to your particular attention. Its virtues are these—it is undeniably effective, it is decidedly different and, in these days of generous revelations, it is surely unique. Exploit it these warmer evenings and your place will be unquestioned in the model ranks.

Must Recognize Youth.
College professors who once preached loudest against the youth movement are now engaged in adjusting themselves to it—fashion critics who derided contemporary fashions as being a flare-back to barbarism have suddenly stopped baying the moon to

Jersey Jumper With Black and White Polka-dot Skirt.

Join the procession. And save only those gentle souls who wear old lace and breathe in an atmosphere of lavender, the mesdames of the mode have joined the expressionistic movement in clothes.

And there you have a really curious situation. Observe some smart society matron of today arrayed in perhaps Lanvin's zouave frock. Then turn to a prewar newspaper file, or family album, and look at a photograph of the same lady gayly decked in the majestic garb of the earlier years of this century. It cannot be that this ever so feminine lady of 1912 has completely metamorphosed into the straight, semi-masculine type of today. It must be that sometimes there comes a surging desire to revert to the days before realism had routed romance. The ingrained manners and breeding of a score and more years cannot be cast off in five or six. And yet, to every outward viewpoint, that has happened. The knee-revealing hemline and a conforming silhouette which looks as though it were individually draped have been adopted unanimously by the same ladies who not so long ago wore the most demure of frills and furbelows and gloried in them.

Follow the Crowds.
They have been adopted here because Fashion has very little to do with personal preferences. As the crowds go you will go, and while it is courageous and valiant enough to march in the opposite direction, you can't get far unless you're very caloused to ridicule. From the viewpoint of the mode, upstream is the diametrically wrong course.

If you would be chic this spring and summer, and for at least several seasons after that, it is your inescapable duty to conform to the modal tenets of the moment. No matter what secret longings you may have for the stately ankle-length skirt, it behooves you to terminate the hemline no lower than a few inches below the knees.

Often enough fashion writers have vociferously preached the doctrine of greater femininity in dress, more mature effects and what not, displaying at the same time some sketches of the mode from Paris which were as young and masculine as you could imagine. If you are one of those whose heart is still with the Victorian regime, there is your cue. Preach gentler dress as loud and long as you will, decry some of the very vulnerable themes of modernistic styles to all the corners of the earth. In that way you may stir up some excellent propaganda which will later bear fruit. Exploit at every opportunity the most gentle versions of this seldom feminine mode. But remember that modernism in dress is still the only key to chic, and in general wear without compromise or exception the expressionistic garb of the moment. You may preach, in a word, a doctrine you do not dare to practice. Unless, of course, yours is the unregardful courage of the dowagers from Back Bay.

DR. FRANK LOOMIS
On Witness Stand in His Trial For Murdering His Wife.

Detroit, June 7.—(UP.)—For four hours today, Dr. Frank M. Loomis, accused of beating his wife to death, calmly sat on the witness stand and answered questions fired at him by Prosecutor Robert M. Toms.

The courtroom, where the doctor is being tried on a first degree murder charge, was packed with interested spectators who sat almost breathless while the prosecutor and stoical physician duelled back and forth.

Yesterday, under direct questioning of his attorney, Louis J. Colombo, the doctor described circumstances under which he returned home to find his wife's body, and the manner in which police obtained statements from him.

The physician showed the first sign of a possible breakdown when he realistically re-enacted his entry into the sunroom of his home and picked up the bloody body. He was dressed in the blood-stained clothes and several times pushed back tears which welled into his eyes.

Today he termed action of officers "cruel" in that they refused to permit him to see friends, relatives or an attorney from Tuesday evening, when the murder occurred, until Thursday afternoon.

Dr. Loomis declared that when released on Saturday, following the murder on a writ of habeas corpus, he went home and took his children for an automobile ride.

Toms asked Dr. Loomis if he had ever, during the three days' questioning by police, made a "misstatement."

"Not that I know of," Loomis answered straightforwardly.

"POSITIVE AGITATION"

"Clean enough"—or C-L-E-A-N?

Can there be a question of how clean a rug ought to be—particularly when that rug is your baby's play-place? Think . . . tiny fists clutch the soft nap . . . rub sleepy eyes . . . then, perhaps, furnish a solacing thumb to chew upon! Decidedly, here, "clean enough" must mean clean!

The new HOOVER
It BEATS... as it Sweeps as it Cleans

The new Hoover, by reason of its revolutionary cleaning principle "Positive Agitation," in the ordinary cleaning time beats out and sweeps up from carpetings MORE THAN TWICE AS MUCH DIRT as even the former Hoover. You want this extra speed and extra cleanliness; we will deliver you the new Hoover for only $6.25 down, with the balance in easy monthly payments.

but that should not bother you. It is attractive and it is feminizing, and the smart woman will lose no opportunity to stress the all too few softer aspects of fashion.

Another worth-while fetish of the current mode is the one-side effect, which emphasizes a noticeable detail at one side only. Thus Vionnet shows numerous frocks and coats in surplice fashion with a decided flare on either the right or left side. Drecoll includes a number of smart models which are draped at only a single side, as well as some others which feature yokes and panels, these latter also confined to one side. In fact, throughout the various summer collections there is a significant emphasis of this theme, one of whose outstanding merits is its effective breaking up of the boyish straight line. Not only are you quite safe in adopting it this summer, but you will mark yourself indelibly as

By CLARISSA MACKIE

(Copyright.)

WHEN the Allenbys lost all their money and were obliged to leave the Big House, as it was locally called, they were able to occupy a small cottage not far away. When they were comfortably settled there, Ann and her mother—for the father had died before his ill-judged investments had proved to be utterly worthless—were cozy and comfortable enough, though they missed the largeness and space that they had always been accustomed to. The cottage garden was a thing of wonder, for dozens of roots were brought from Big House, and their old gardener, Jacob, had made them a wonderful vegetable garden that was surrounded with more flowers!

"Mother, darling, I know we lack the luxury and the motors of Big House," said Ann, one lovely June day, "but aren't you a little bit happy?"

Mrs. Allenby smiled contentedly at her charming daughter. "I am happier, dear, than I have been since I was first married," she admitted. "Your father and I began our married life in this wee house."

"Mother! And you never told me!" exclaimed Ann.

"I wanted you to teach yourself to like the change, without favorable prejudice. You know, of course," said Mrs. Allenby, "that Big House has been sold—a small family, I hear, mother and son, they say. He's an electrical engineer. When they are thoroughly settled, I shall, of course call."

Half an hour later, the gate opened and a young man appeared carrying a shining milk pail. Ann liked him at once, because he was big and so clean and thoroughly good looking.

"I came to beg a pail of your spring water, Mrs. Allenby," he said. "We have just arrived at Big House and something has happened to the spring water pump there—at least it is out of commission."

"Why, of course," said hospitable Mrs. Allenby. "My daughter will direct you," and she resumed her novel, while Ann with a little nod of assent put aside her sewing and joined him on the red brick path.

"Big House is a fine old mansion," observed the young man as they walked along, "but I do miss a few things—such as this old brick path for instance."

"I love them, too," said Ann. "I believe mother forgot to introduce us, I am Ann Allenby."

"And I am Ronald Smith," he laughed. "One of the great Smith clan!" They laughed together as they reached the spring house.

"Then, you are a member of Big House family," offered Ann.

He nodded carelessly. "There is only mother and I—the rest of the family have all married and gone off—even father has taken a trip to South America!"

Ann made some happy response, and went back to the veranda. She went on sewing daintily. Then Mrs. Allenby said abruptly:

"A rather nice looking man—I suppose he is the butler or chauffeur."

Ann gasped, and then a dimple came into her cheek; what a funny joke on mother! she thought.

"Have you ever seen any of the Smiths, mother—of course, I mean the new family next door?"

"No," said Mrs. Allenby, resuming her book.

Every day Ronald Smith appeared with his pail for water. One morning he brought a great armful of yellow roses, that had been Mrs. Allenby's pride and joy at Big House. "Mother sent these to Mrs. Allenby," he said simply, and went on around by the brick walk.

"Mother!" exclaimed Mrs. Allenby. "Never let him know that I thought him the butler!"

"Or the chauffeur!" laughed Ann, and then she told her mother what she had learned that first day.

"Then, he must be the electrical engineer," decided Mrs. Allenby. "I wonder," she mused, "why he did not repair their pump after that first day."

"I wonder!" echoed Ann, but there was a pink flush in her cheeks, and a tender look in her eyes, for her meetings with young Smith, though brief and full of interest. Mrs. Allenby put aside her plan of summer idleness, and sending for the village taxi cab she paid a state call upon Mrs. Smith, who turned out to be so delightful a woman of her own social rank, with so many congenial acquaintances who were also friends of Mrs. Allenby's, that a very warm friendship grew rapidly between them.

"Tonnie is just spending the summer with me," explained Mrs. Smith on day.

The two ladies exchanged a smile for Ronald Smith and Ann had fallen desperately in love with each other and it was not long before they became engaged.

Then Ronald announced his desire to live with Mrs. Allenby at White Cottage. "Of course, you can have a housemaid—and more, if you wish," he told Ann and her mother one day, "but for my part, I can be both butler and chauffeur, if necessary!"

M. H. Broughton, Railroad Man Considered as Successor to F. B. Mauller.

Governor Donahey has been presented with a new name for appointment as a member of the Public Utilities commission, to succeed Frank B. Mauller, the only Republican member on the commission, whom the governor personally is antagonistic to and will remove the moment he finds he can do so under the law. Mauller who was appointed by Governor Harry L. Davis, has hung on during the almost three terms of Governor Donahey and refuses to leave the place until the supreme court says he is obliged to. The fight between the governor and Mauller is as interesting a phase of public life, as anything Columbus affords as the present.

Going on the assumption that Mauller will finally have to go the various railroad organizations of the state have united on the appointment of M. H. Broughton, of Columbus, trainmaster on the B. & O. railroad, between Columbus and Newark and a railroad man of more than 30 years experience. Moreover he is a Republican and meets the political exigencies of the case, since the successor to Mauller must belong to that party under the law.

A number of delegations, representing various railroad organizations have seen the governor personally to ask the appointment of Mr. Broughton and his name has been urged by John C. Sullivan, a former member, under appointment of Governor Harmon, of the state board of public service, which had to do with utilities matters and before that a prominent railroad official for many years.

It is made plain to the governor that since the utilities commission deals to a very large extent with questions which affect questions of transportation and transportation companies, one member of the organization should be a practical railroad man.

There is not a city in the state where some members of a railroad brotherhood have not joined in asking the appointment of Mr. Broughton.

Substitute for Sun

Dwellers in smoke-shrouded cities and such as sleep by day and work by night can make up what they suffer from lack of sufficient sunshine by the use of electric sun baths, according to an eminent British health authority. Prolonged periods of wet weather tend noticeably to increase the spread of sickness in large cities, and pulmonary diseases are prevalent where sunlight is lacking, as are many ailments peculiar to children. Electric sun baths, the British physician referred to declares, offer a satisfactory substitute for nature's own.
